$10,000 DAMAGES.

Police Commissioner Maxon Sues the Globe-Democrat for Libel.

He Bases His Petition Upon an Interview Published This Morning.

The rumor was current through town at noon to-day that John H. Maxon, of the Board of Police Commissioners, had sued the Globe-Democrat for $50,000 damages for libel. A reporter at once sought Mr. Maxon and asked him what truth there was in the story. He smiled when he heard the figures mentioned by Dame Rumor $50,000, and said, "Oh, no! It is not quite so bad as that. I haven't a moment's time now to talk to you about the suit." He then directed the reporter to the attorney in whose hands the petition was and laughingly declined to say any more about it. He is evidently very angry at the Globe-Democrat and means to make things very lively for that enterprising sheet.

Mr. Maxon this afternoon filed the suit, which is for malicious libel and against the Globe-Democrat publishers. He claims ten thousand dollars damages by reason of an article published in the Globe-Democrat of this morning headed: "The Police Scandal—Some fresh features suggest themselves to Chas. P. Johnson for scathing comment the Commissioners passed upon individually."

Mr. Maxon takes exception to some references concerning his conduct as Police Commissioner which are published as the utterances of Gov. Johnson in an interview. He complains in his petition that the publication was made with the design of having citizens falsely believe that he was in collusion with a combination of felons, and he complains of a statement purporting to be Mr. Johnson's, to the effect that Mr. Maxon had said, upon being asked why he had allowed such remarkable conduct toward the Howard woman to induce such testimony concerning Johnson, that "he (Maxon) would make an alliance with the devil if possible in such a case," Mr. Johnson adding that he thought Maxon had long since perfected such alliance. A further reference to Mr. Maxon is complained of where Mr. Johnson is reported to say that when Black was arrested Maxon went to Pate's, found Pate and McChesney there, and Lehndorf was dispatched to give bail.

Birthday Party.

Mr. Nathan Schwab, of the New York Novelty Company, gave a birthday party last evening in one of the private parlors of the Lindell Hotel. A splendid dinner was served under the direction of Mr. John Colbert, head waiter of the establishment. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Moses Fraley, Mr. and Mrs. Gus. Frank, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Pollock. Mr. Joseph Frank and Mr. Max Schwab. The table was covered with a profusion of flowers and the sideboard charmingly decorated for the occasion.

Rail Freights Cut.

It is a pretty well established fact now that some railroads are cutting rates on Eastbound freight. A freat agent stated to-day that lead was being taken from here on a 25c rate to Boston and 26c to New York, and flour and grain on a basis of 20c to New York. The road to start this cut is said to be the C. and A.

RAILROADS.

The Latest Development Concerning Stocks, Rates and Pools.

NEW YORK, November 15.—It is reported that Erie made an effort yesterday to persuade Vanderbilt to advance west-bound rates, which he declined to do.

Bearish views upon Vanderbilt's stocks are increasing.

It is stated that the Pennsylvania Company intends starting its limited express two hours after the departure of the fast train of the New York Central road and to get into Chicago first.

The annual report of the Memphis and Charleston road, to be presented at the annual meeting to-day, shows an increase in the earnings of $1,342 082; operating expenses $511,345; extraordinary exyenses $556,423; net increase of indebtedness over available assets $289,641; appreciation in value of property $370,-947; net gain $111,307. A good demand is reported for Des Moines and Keokuk preferred.

An upward movement in securities of the Lake Erie and Western is predicted. The home demand for Louisiana and Tennessee State bonds continues. The advance in Cincinnati, Sandusky and Cleveland yesterday was on covering of the Boston short interest. A good investment demand is reported for Chesapeake and Ohio securities.

The late agreement between the elevated roads was signed by the presidents of the three companies yesterday.

The Louisville, New Albany and Chicago stock, which yesterday sold at 81¾, has declined to 75 on a sale of 400 shares.

THE WHITE-HOLDEN FIGHT.

A Mill That May Not Take Place—The Present Attitude of the Pugilists.

ERIE, PA., November 15.—The White-Holden prize-fight may not come off after all. White arrived yesterday, but Holden is not here yet, and White's friends offer to bet $1,000 he won't come. Two Canadian detectives are reported to be here watching events. The Presiding Judge of this judicial district remarked from the bench yesterday that the full penalties of the law would be visited upon all parties brought before him for violations of the regulations against prize-fighting. This served to render the managers unusually cautious, and it is exceedingly difficult to obtain reliable information. The present intention seems to be to leave here for Canada at 2 or 3 to morrow settling the affair on landing and returning to Erie in the afternoon. The steamer Pearl of Buffalo is expected to take the crowd across the lake. Some think the fight will occur on the peninsula, just across Erie Bay. It belongs to the General Government and the promoters of the mill are inclined to believe that the State laws cannot reach them there.

THE INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE.

Its First National Tariff Convention Being Held in Chicago.

CHICAGO, November 15.—The Industrial League of America opened its first National Tariff Convention at Fairbanks Hall in the Central Music Hall Building at 11 o'clock this morning. The objects of the convention are the purification of the public service, the restoration of the national flag upon the ocean, the advancement of the ship building industry, the regaining of our lost place in the carrying trade, the discussion of the advisability of an early and progressive reduction of the internal taxes of the General Government and discussion of means to naturalize new industries upon our soil. The convention assembled with ex-Gov. Rufus Bullock, of Atlanta, in the chair. He made a brief address stating the aims and objects of the convention. Jas. Scanlon and E. H. Talbot of Chicago, and J. M. Bohrer, of New York, were appointed secretaries. A committee on permanent organization was chosen, after which the convention adjourned to 3 p. m.

GUITEAU'S TRIAL.

The Impaneling of Jurors Still Going On.

A Citizen who Thought Garfield's Murder a Serious Accident.

The Crush for Seats in the Court-Room and the Scenes.

WASHINGTON, November 15.—The pressure to obtain admission to the court-room this morning was notably greater than yesterday. After the ushers had exercised the right of selection and admitted two or three score well-dressed, respectable-looking people, including a Pennsylvania member of Congress, accompanied by ladies, the doors were thrown open and there was a sudden and impetuous influx of representatives of the rougher elements of society. The five jurors sworn yesterday were early in attendance.

The court was formally opened a few minutes after 10 o'clock, and immediately after the counsel in the case and the brother and sister of the prisoner entered. After the lapse of a few minutes Guiteau was hurried into the court-room in the custody of half a dozen policemen and deputy marshals. His handcuffs were removed and he shook hands with his sister and brother and took a seat reserved for him between them and his counsel.

Scoville then submitted an affidavit and made application for an order for an additional number of witnesses, which order was made by the court. Then the additional panel of seventy-five summoned last evening was called, most of the persons responding when called.

manifested less nervousness and excitability than yesterday, although in his whispered conversations with his brother he was quite demonstrative and earnest in his manner.

A colored barber named Howard was the first juror to be called and examined as to his fitness to serve. His answers showed him to be not disqualified from service, but the defense challenged him peremptorily, being the fourth peremptory challenge.

Next was a man named Lynch, who had decided upon the opinion that Guiteau ought to be hanged or burned. He was, of course, excused, as was also the next (named Bailey), who declared his belief that Guiteau was crazy.

The next was a colored man, remarkable for his frilled shirt front and dramatic posture and manner, who related the history of his past life and then was peremptorily challenged by the defense. In fact, it is understood that Guiteau is resolved not to have a colored man on the jury.

The next was an Irishman named Michael Sheehan, with a very pronounced brogue, who has no opinion upon the subject of Guiteau's crime except that "the man was out of his head." He was sworn as the sixth juror.

Wm. Talbott, an iron worker, having answered all questions to the satisfaction of the defense, saying that he "had never bothered his head on the question of Guiteau's crime," was challenged peremptorily by the prosecution. Several others in succession were excused on their statements. They had firm and decided opinions. One of them believed Guiteau ought to be hanged and another would require convincing medical testimony to change his opinion. A long-faced young colored man named Foster declared he was perfectly free from any prejudice in the matter, but admitted that he had mentioned it (the murder of Garfield) to several parties as "quite a serious accident." He was challenged peremptorily by the defense.

Samuel F. Hobbs, a native of Maryland and a carpenter by occupation, answered all questions satisfactorily and was sworn as the seventh juror.

G. W. Gates, a young man, native of Washington, and a machinist, was sworn as eighth juror. After that, for about an hour, every man called confessed he had formed a "firm," or "decided," or "unalterable" opinion on the question of the prisoner's guilt, and was excused.

THERE WAS ONE EXCEPTION

in the person of a colored man named Ralph Wormley, a plasterer by occupation, who thought he could render a fair verdict, and said he had not read more about the case than he did "in ordinary cases of that kind." He did not believe everything he read in the newspapers because they had published things about himself that were not true. He could not say whether the President was shot by the prisoner until he would hear the testimony. Of course if an insane man did the shooting he would be as much guilty as anybody else. The "crazy" part of the business was something else; "no sensible man could have done such a thing." After consultation between counsel and prisoner and his brother, Scoville said the defense would accept the juror, and so Wormley was sworn in as the ninth juror.

The list of seventy-five having been exhausted, the Marshal was directed to summon another list of seventy-five for to morrow, and the court adjourned.

THERE WAS SOME DIFFICULTY

in maintaining order among the crowd of spectators present to listen to the proceedings. There were no manifestations of ill-will against the prisoner except now and then a slight disposition to applaud an expression occasionally made by those being examined for jury duty that they were of the decided opinion that the assassin ought to be hanged; but applause was in every instance promptly checked by the deputy marshals. A cause of the disorder was the overcrowding of the platform assigned to the general public and the efforts of a number of young men, of whom the audience was chiefly composed, to secure more available places.

Resigned and Replaced.

WASHINGTON, November 15.—Col. Charles Worthington, Statistician of the Department of Agriculture, has resigned on account of a pressure of private business. He will be succeeded by J. R. Dodge, who held the office under President Grant.

The Howgate Embezzlement.

WASHINGTON, November 15.—It is understood an additional case of embezzlement, amounting to $40,000, has been found against Capt. Howgate, and the matter will be laid before the grand jury.

Herman Happenings.

HERMAN, MO., November 15.—Conrad Klinge, Sheriff of Gasconade county, had his right hand almost cut off by one Charles Rick. Rick made his escape, but was afterwards arrested in Franklin county, Missouri, by Albert Christel and R. C. Mumbraune, and brought back to this place and locked up.

The hardware store of Otto Monig, Sr., was entered by burglars on the night of the 9th inst., by forcing an entrance through the back door, and fifteen revolvers and a lot of razors and pocket knives were taken. There is no clue as yet to the guilty parties, but it is thought that some tramps are the burglars.

Indications.

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 15.—For Tennessee and Ohio Valley, fair weather, slowly falling barometer, northerly winds becoming variable, slight changes in temperature. For Lower Lake Region, generally colder and fair weather, westerly winds prouably shifting to southerly, and rising barometer in eastern portion. For Upper Lake Region, Upper Mississippi and Missouri Valleys, increasing cloudiness and areas of snow, westerly to southerly winds, falling barometer, stationary or slight rise in temperature.

COTTON, WHEAT AND CORN.

Reports of the Department of Agriculture on These Products.

WASHINGTON, November 15.—The report of the Department of Agriculture on cotton indicates a yield per acre considerably less than last year. It is reported there is a decrease of 33 per cent in Louisiana, 40 per cent in Texas and nearly 60 per cent in Arkansas. North Carolina makes a return of 30 per cent less yield than in 1880. South Carolina, Georgia and Mississipp report a better condition, and prospects for a crop not much below last year in those States. Of wheat the average yield per acre in 1881 is 10½ bushels, against 13 1-10 in 1880, indicating a decrease of about 20 per cent or 100,000,000 bushels from last year's product. In the interior and Western States there has been a great falling off, caused by a severe winter, late cold spring, drouth, and in several States insect ravages, but while the quantity of the crop is reduced the quality generally is reported very good. Corn—Reports say the November returns show an average yield of 20½ bushels per acre, indicating a falling off of about 25 per cent from the crop of 1880, caused chiefly by the general and protracted drouth during the growing season and by excessive rains since the crop was harvested. The quality of the crop is somewhat below the average.

AN IRISH REPUBLIC.

The Ambition of an Organization of Fenian Revolutionists.

Bismarck and Electoral Reforms—Earthquakes in Switzerland—Foreign Affairs.

France.

PARIS, November 15.—Rouvier has been appointed Minister of the Colonies as well as of Commerce. The following have been appointed Under Secretaries: Spuller of Foreign Affairs, Le Lievre of War, Blondin of Marine, Caze of Agriculture, Felix Faure of Commerce and the Colonies, Lesguillon of Public Works, Martin Feuille of Justice, Develle of the Interior, De la Porte of Finance. A decree will be published reuniting the Ministers of Public Instruction and of Worship. This is important in view of the violent anti-clerical opinions of Paul Bert, the minister of Public Instructions.

THE NEW MINISTRY.

LONDON, November 15.—The Times in its leading article says: The composition of the French Ministry was somewhat of a surprise and perhaps little of disappointment in its significance. Paul Bert's appointment to the Ministry of Public Instruction cannot be mistaken. The new Ministry, it may almost be said, is not so much a Ministry of Gambetta as it is Gambetta himself. It is impossible not to see in the ascendancy of Gambetta a certain revival of personal government and a possible menace to the spirit of Republican institutions. His ascension to office is a turning-point in the affairs of France, and possibly even in those of Europe, but history and his career are the strongest security that Gambetta can be proof against selfish ambitions.

Ireland.

LONDON, November 15.—The documents seized in connection with the arrest of Tobin, the Fenian, relate to the establishment by force of arms of an Irish Republic. They reveal the existence of an extensive organization known as the "Royal Irish Republican Society," with numerous members. The books, rules and the list of members of the society are likely to throw light on the existence of similar organizations elsewhere.

ARCHBISHOP CROKE,

of Cashel, writes to the Dublin Freeman's Journal, repudiating the statements of the Standard that he sent a dispatch to the New York Irish World admitting that he had given advice in 1880 to hold the harvest.

SUSPECTS RELEASED.

Four suspects were released from prison to-day.

A LAND DECISION.

LIMERICK, November 15.—The sub-commission of the Land Court here has decided that a number of holdings in the vicinity of the city on which tenants reside are agricultural holdings, and therefore entitled to the benefit of the Land Act and that they would have been rightly excluded if merely held as market gardens by persons residing in the city. The decision was received with applause. It is important, as a large number of cases affected by the decision may be appealed.

England.

LONDON, November 15.—The new Cunard steamer Servia, under steam all day yesterday with 2,500 tons dead weight on board, attained a speed of 20½ miles per hour. The new White Star Line steamer Coptic has arrived in the Mersey. The engines worked perfectly.

A FENIAN ARRESTED.

Tobin, the Fenian, is arrested.

FAILED.

LONDON, November 15.—Messrs. Land, carl manufacturers near Bradford, have failed. Liabilities £130,000.

Germany.

BERLIN, November 15.—A correspondent says, Bismarck advocates extensive electoral reforms. He desires that minorities be represented in Parliament, and that there be a radical change in the formation of the electoral districts.

THE ELECTIONS.

BERLIN, November 15.—The results of eighty-eight second ballots for members of the Reichstag show the election of 9 Conservatives, 2 of the Center party, 16 National Liberals, 14 Secessionists, 2 Liberals, 23 Progressists, 5 of the Party of the People, 13 Socialists and 4 Particularists.

Greece.

LONDON, November 15.—The Turks evacuated Volo Sunday, and the Greeks entered the town to-day.

Italy.

ROME, November 15.—The Pope sat in council with a select congregation of cardinals to consider the Irish question.

Switzerland.

GENEVA, November 15.—Several shocks of earthquake occurred in the Canton of Vaud last week.

Another Official Embezzler.

NEW YORK, November 15.—Deputy Collector Ernest A. Thormalen, of the First Collection District of Illinois, was arrested to-day on a charge of embezzlement while in the Government employ, and will be held pending advices from Chicago authorities.

Dropped Dead.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, MO., November 15.—William W. Walker, an old gentleman who came from Keokuk to Kansas City a year ago, dropped dead this morning at his residence in this city. The cause was congestion of the lungs. The deceased was quite wealthy.

I. O. O. F.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, November 15.—The grand encampment of Odd Fellows met in annual session here this morning.

HIS AUTUMN REVERIE.

How cold the old porch seems! A dreary chill
Creeps upward from the river at twilight.
And yet I like to linger here at night,
And dream the Summer tarries with us still:

The Summer, and the Summer's guests—or guest
(Men rarely dream in plurals). Over there
Beyond the pillar, stands the rustic chair,
As bare and empty as a robin's nest.

No pretty head reclines its golden bands
Against the back. No playful winds disclose
Distracting glimpses of embroidered hose.
No palm-leaf sways in dainty, dangerous hands.

How cold it is! That star up yonder gleams
A white icicle from the heavenly eaves.
That bleak wind from the river sighs and grieves,
Mayhap o'er some poor fellow's broken dreams.

Come in and shut the door, and leave that star
To watch above the lonely portico,
Summer, and Summer-guests, and dreams must go.
Well, Fate was kind to leave me my cigar.

ELLA WHEELER.

PREVALENCE OF PLUSH.

Fashions in Ladies' Dress for the Winter—The Popular Trimming.

From the New York Times.

There are few articles of dress for winter wear which do not include plush. This material is consequently so varied in color and design as to furnish ample scope for the greatest variety in dress. "Xaima" plush is all silk, with a long nap. Shaded stripes form most of the designs for this plush, in such combinations as cream-colored grounds, with threads of light blue and tea-rose color. A plush suitable for trimming young ladies' and children's felt hats is of shaded moss-color in two tones, alternating with cream-colored stripes. This plush also serves for draperies and scarfs on white satin or surah toilets. The following varieties of plush may be employed with cachemire de l'Inde or cloth costumes. For a navy-blue or havane colored suit "Xaima" plush is used with navy-blue grounding and stripes of shaded old-gold and wood color, with red threads. A green cloth dress is trimmed with plush, with a green grounding and blue and red threads, combined with broad shaded copper-colored stripes. The plush may also have a green grounding, with yellow and blue threads and broad ruby-colored shaded stripes. A garnet or claret-colored suit has for trimming garnet-colored plush, with blue and old-gold colored threads and moss-colored shaded stripes. "Pekin" is of the same soft material as the "Xaima," and has regular stripes in dark shades on light groundings. There are black stripes on gray, pearl-color, havane, ruby, and old-gold colored groundings, garnet on moss green, and moss green stripes on pale rose color. Vests, cuffs and collars are of these fancy plushes, and form a great addition to any toilet. "Bosse e Biyadere" plush is a very fine article with stripes divided by a double thread of gros grain silk. It is manufactured in such colors as ruby striped with gold and red gros grain silk, peacock blue striped with moss green and pink, moss green striped with pink and brown, and Russian green with gold and red stripes. Glazed plush is in all shades. Plush "moirees," one of the novelties, is also in all colors, and makes superb opera cloaks in ivory white, red or tea color, trimmed with fox. "Peluche givre" is a very odd material. It is a kind of fine woolen down showing the pink, black, red or old-gold colored stripes through the downy fabric. This plush is much liked for round felt hats. "Dagmar" plush has a soft, downy surface, with pointed designs in light shades forming net-work on the grounding. Velour moires is preferred to ordinary moire antique silk, as it is naturally richer, softer and more showy.

Princess dresses with long trains called "robes Douairieres" are made for bridal trosseaus. Court mantles are of plain satin for wear over plain or brocaded moire antique dresses. They are used for dinner and receptions. It is most probable that deep "chicorees" trimmings will be used for the lower borders of skirts. Several rows of plaits taken back in sheil shape are among the skirt trimmings.

Confections are a combination of the visite, the mantle, and the round cape. The materials are embossed velvet, cloth, satin, and plain velvet, trimmed with fur, lace, and chenille, or jet fringe. All the linings are of plush, either "moiree," Scotch, algerine, or plain. The "tailleur" jacket and the "levite" are worn over plain suits. There is also a kind of hood added to the costumes, which is a great improvement to their general effect. It is made of a large piece of the goods lined with silk. The material is so arranged that the right side of the goods falls over the shoulders, it is then turned over like a cape with the top of the hood pushed back. A very rich and elegant garment is of velours de Genes, moire. The border is cut in tiny points, and it is trimmed with fringe and drooping silk ornaments. On the lower part of the back are handsome silk twisted cordelieres. The lining is of cardinal red plush, showing to great advantage a handsome lynx fur bordering. The combination of color of this light fur and rich red lining and the general character of the garment is something quite new. Some fashionable Parisian dressmakers use for dresses different kinds of embroidered woolen goods. Various shades of fawn-colored Tibet cloth or vigogne are worked in designs such as boars' heads and negroes' heads, in their natural coloring, that is, a fine black, with some dots of red and white. In spite of this being one of the most eccentric styles ever invented, it is nevertheless most effective. All kinds of animals' heads may be thus worked on the goods. Until this season the embroidery for evening toilets was confined to elegant flowers and delicately-shaded birds, but now even walking suits are covered with animals' heads, and, as all of these are not as pleasing as some of the above-named, the general result is not always as good as might be desired. There is, however, no attention paid to this disadvantage, and the heavier and commoner the effect the more likelihood is that the material will become popular. Spiders, turtles, crabs, parrots, owls and frogs will be equally favored. On the brims of bonnets and among the folds of muffs are repulsive looking greenish serpents. Suits for dressy purposes are of cachemire with English embroidery, and woolen galloon embroidered in crochet, either in different shades of one color or in cachemire tones. Some ladies work on India cachemire bands in imitation of Richelieu guipure. Fawn-colored silk embroidery is done on blue cachemire and light blue on navy blue or red cachemire, and is then cut out. These bands serve for children's dresses, and young ladies use them for parures, collars, sleeves, waists, revers and ruffles on the borders of aprons. Evening toilets for very young ladies are of white surah, and if to be used at other times they may be in such colors as gray, mastic and pervinca. The trimmings for these are white lace or lace in the color of the material. Collars and jabots are of chenille loops shaded in light tones. These novelties are much less pretentious than bunches of flowers. Over dresses of surah, pekin and glace fabrics, plush-striped scarfs have a very rich effect. Light satin and plush toilets are trimmed with valenciennes.

Retained Editors.

From the Boston Herald.

The retaining of a leader-writer on a great London journal, such as the Times, the Telegraph, or the News, is a peculiar feature in English journalism. If a writer shows marked evidence of merit, or if he has the ability to write exhaustively and in a graphic manner on some special class of topic, he is retained, as it is termed; that is, he is paid a stipulated amount each year. With the papers referred to, this is commonly £1,000 ($5,000). In receiving a retainer he binds himself not to write for any other publication on the topics for the treatment of which his employer has engaged him. In his leisure hours he can write on other subjects as much as he pleases, but the implied understanding is that he must keep himself thoroughly informed on every phase of the particular question the Times or the News wishes him to write upon, and must be in readiness, whenever called upon, to furnish an editorial leader. It may happen that weeks and even months will pass by and no call will be made for his services, and at another time his pen will every day be in demand. His retainer is not given to pay him for what he writes, but simply to reward him for keeping himself thoroughly informed, and to secure, when needed, the command of his services. For the actual writing he does for the paper to which he is attached he receives additional pay. The London Times pays for its first, or leading editorial article, $50, and $25 each for the following articles. In the Times office it is sometimes the case on an important subject that two and even three leader writers are asked to cover the same ground, and it has frequently happened that the article, when it appears, is formed out of the contributions of all three, skilfully dovetailed together by the revising editor, who has selected the best and most striking portions of each article submitted to him. When this is done each writer is paid precisely as though his leader had been printed in its entirety. Hence the cost of some of the Times' leading editorials is $150. In the other large newspapers the writer of the leading article commonly receives $25, and the writers of following ones $15 each. These rates, it may be added, are in excess—independent of the retrainer—of what is paid for editorial work by our American journals.

A Mother's Temptation.

From the New York Sun.

Mrs. Caroline Cuthbert, aged 25, was charged yesterday wish having stolen a sealskin sacque worth $200 from Mrs. B. Ketchum, of 132 Hayward street, Brooklyn. She has four children, the youngest a baby. She said she was in a good social position when she was married, and her husband had a fortune. She lived in luxury, and took but little heed of their expenditures. Finally they found themselves close to poverty. Their means steadily grew less until she was threatened with extreme want. Her husband did not give her anything for her support. She tried to keep the family by giving music lessons, but she could not get enough pupils to support her children. Early this week she called at one house, where, having failed to secure a pupil, she asked for any cast-off clothing that the lady had. Just then Mrs. Ketchum called, and, learning of her distress, told her that if she would call at her house the next day, she would give her a bundle of clothes. She called, and told her mission to the servant, who handed her a bundle which she took away. When she reached her home she found that the package contained a sealskin sacque. She said that she thought there had been a mistake made, and was about to return with it, when she was moved by the pitiful condition of her children to take the sacque to a pawnshop, where she obtained a loan of $30.

Mrs. Ketchum said that the woman's story was true as to the arrangement that she should receive a bundle of clothes, and under the circumstances she refused to prosecute her. Mrs. Cuthbert, by advice, entered a plea of guilty, and Justice Fisher suspended sentence. The sealskin sacque, which Mrs. Ketchum recovered, had been wrapped up to be delivered to a furrier's messenger.

A Veritable "India-Rubber Man."

Vienna Correspondence London Globe.

The strangest phenomenon we have seen for a long time is now on view in Vienna. "Der Gummimensch," or the India-rubber man, is quite the queerest fellow imaginable. He is a pale, flaccid man, with red hair and a bilious complexion; he wears black velvet knickerbockers, and is very polite. He can seize the skin of his chest with both hands, pull it away from his body about 18 inches, and raise it to the level of his head; and yet when he leaves go, instead of this skin hanging in horrid folds it goes spreading itself again, so that not a crease is to be discovered. The skin of his nose he can stretch 6 inches, the skin of his fingers 2 inches, so that his hands look sizes No. 20 or 30. He drags at the calf of his leg and beholds a goodly and translucent membrane, in which can be seen the ramified network of arteries, pink and pulsating. This does not hurt him. He can—but enough. You see that he well deserves his title of "Gummimensch." What with his cadaverous face and gluey elasticity he much reminds one of Dore's ghastly portrayal of the damned in the grand illustrations of the "Inferno." The medical faculty are highly exercised anent this man and they have begged him for the smallest strip of skin just for a microscopical investigation. There has not been such a case for two centuries, and in those days of course the microscope was rather primitive. "Gummimensch" is a Bavarian, thirty-two years of age, married and has three normal children. He charges two florins to show himself. His skin feels like velvet, or perhaps rather like the breast of a plucked fowl, but it is not a sweet sensation to touch him.

A Carnivorous Parrot.

London Daily Telegraph, October 28.

There is now in the "Zoo" a very remarkable bird, the Nestor notabilis, or Mountain Kea, of New Zealand. It is a parrot of strong fame and powerful bill and claws, which were used like those of all parrots for obtaining a vegetable diet until the colonists introduced sheep and pigs. As soon as this was done, the Kea seems to have abandoned vegetable food and to have taken entirely to flesh-eating. He attacks sick or dying or disabled sheep, and with his powerful cutting beak opens a passage through the back and eats the intestines. Even healthy animals are sometimes assailed by the Nestor notabilis, and there are sheep-runs in New Zealand where considerable losses have been incurred through these strangely degenerated birds. The specimen in the Zoological Gardens gave as much trouble to capture as an eagle, tearing the clothes of the shepherd who knocked it down while pouncing on a lamb, and lacerating his hands. The Kea scorns cooked meat, biscuits, fruit, or seeds, and likes raw mutton better than any food. He will tear the skin and flesh from a sheep's head after the furious fashion of a vulture—leaving nothing but the bare skull. He at one time holds the morsels in his lifted claw, after the style of parrots, and at another grips them under his feet while rending with his beak like a hawk. This is a very curious example of change of habit, for there is every reason to believe that before sheep and pigs were introduced into New Zealand the Kea was as frugivorous in its meals as most, if not all, other parrots. He will now eat pork and beef as well as mutton, and has become, in fact, utterly and hopelessly carnivorous.

Novel Veterans.

From the New York Times.

There are still living no fewer than five men who served with the great Nelson in the fight of Trafalgar Bay, the seventy-sixth anniversary of which was celebrated in London three weeks ago. The first of them is, of course, Admiral Sir George Rose Sartorius, G. C. B., who is now 91 years of age, and was then a Midshipman on board the Tonnant: Admiral Robert Patton, of the same age, held the same rank on the Bellerophon; Commander William Vicary, one year younger, was a first-class volunteer on the Achilles; Commander Francis Harris, also 90, held the same rating on the Temeraire; Col. James Fynmore, the last of the five, was a Midshipman aboard the Africa, and has passed his ninety-second year. Possibly there are others living who, as seamen and marines, served in the immortal fight, but their number can be but small at best. There is still surviving only one ship which came under flag on that day. She is the Victory.

Mammoth Cave Mushrooms.

From the Cincinnati Commercial.

A private letter from Mammoth Cave states that the company who recently rented a portion of the cave for a mushroom patch has been completely organized and that a shaft is now being sunk from above. The location is about two miles from the tourist entrance and immediately to the right of the main cavern. It is peculiarly adapted for the growth of mushrooms, and as they grow in a single night the statement of the company that they will be able to supply the Louisville, Cincinnati and other daily markets is likely to be verified.

WASHINGTON JOBBERY.

Some of the Many Little Leaks Out of Which Government Money Escapes.

Washington Cor. Philadelphia Times.

A good many treatises on "Money and How to Make It" have been written and published. The theories are even more plentiful than the methods actually practiced and the whole world is practicing. I have never yet seen a book of instructions on the art of spending money. The whole problem in life appears to center in the business of getting money together, of keeping it together after you get it. The problem is a still more serious one when you come to governments instead of individuals. The difficulty of keeping Government money together is something superhuman. It begins with a township trustee and leads up to the most aggravated form with Uncle Sam's custodians. Once in a while a man will rob himself, oftener his wife and family and somewhat more often his employers; but it is only as an officer of the government or in an official capacity that he can successfully rob everybody, including himself, at the same time. This is the beauty of a government position. To be able to spend somebody else's money is a motive power in politics. I have laid it down as a distinct and incontrovertible proposition that salary is government and government is salary. One cannot exist without the other. Starting from correct premises, if you ever arrive at a conclusion at all, it will probably be a correct one.

THE TREASURY SCANDAL.

I think I can give another foundation for solid reasoning: the smaller the steal the worse it is—the more shame and contumely—for the thieves. I have been an amused looker-on here in Vienna at the raid being made on John Sherman, because a department carpenter, sent by the order of a sycophantic Superintendent of Treasury-workshops, did sixty dollars' worth of work on Secretary Sherman's house. That the work was done and that Sherman got the benefit of so much to which he was not entitled, there is no doubt. That he got a great deal more than the carpenter job there is no question. These admitted, you may say, what defense can be made of Sherman? This: so far as being a deliberate party to such small roguery, Sherman is to blame the same as the Secretary of the Navy is to blame for the petty peculations in the navy yard pointed out last week; the same as the Postmaster-General is for Star Route frauds; the same as the Secretary of the Interior is for land and Indian rascalities. Ex-Secretary Sherman says he knew nothing whatever of the details of the work on his house. The Secretary was too busy with his fences in Ohio and had time for heavier financiering only. I think it unreasonable to doubt Sherman's word on this point. Nobody with any sense believes that John Sherman would have planned and schemed to beat the Government out of fifty cents to a dollar a day, letting a whole department into his confidential operation, when by a crook of the finger and without fear of detection he might have made a million. I was never an admirer of Sherman nor have I ever reverenced his financial ability, but I have never placed him below the ordinary ideal or helped advertise him as a common fool.

GNAT AND CAMEL.

I have been amused at the noise made over all this petty looseness in accountability because it is really funny to see how easily the public overlooks or underlooks the most gigantic robberies. Take the pension business, for example. The Commissioner of Pensions has just put in a cool request for $100,000,000 for the next fiscal year. In the meantime, as a little deficiency—pocket money—he wants $20,000,000 right away. Do you know what $100,000,000 means? It is a big sum of money—more than the best newspaper man ever made in a year. Fifty million was the deficiency last year and twenty million more is wanted. Ninety million will probably see us through the present fiscal year. Ah, there is nothing mean about the pension business. We deal in millions now. Just think of a job of carpentering for Sherman compared with the great pension robbery, which will, it is now estimated, not fall far short of $500,000,000! And yet Sherman's carpentering, Sherman's bay rum, etc., have created more vigorous condemnation than this gigantic robbery of the age. Why? Because people hate and despise a sneak thief, while they admire the dash of the robber.

A POLITICAL JOB.

But there is another reason which comes to brace up this human instinct. The $500,000,000 was a bid from a political party through its representatives in Congress for the soldier vote. They robbed the people of the United States of $500,000,000 to pay a few surviving ex-soldiers for their franchises in the next coming election. How did the plan work? Did they get what they paid out other people's money for with such wanton liberality? Not much. For the other political party, frightened at the ghost of the ex-soldier, bastily converted the measure into their own. Both parties went upon the stump and claimed the great pension robbery as their ownest own and boasted of their patriotism in the bargain! This is how the great robbery miscarried as a means of making political capital. At that time the followers of Hancock and Garfield scarcely knew the extent to which they had plundered the Treasury under the hypocritical cant of "patriotism." You don't hear any of the robbers boasting of it now. Nor are the partisan journals publishing column after column of small Treasury scandals, declaiming the great pension infamy from the housetops. The dark, deep, mysterious shadow of the ex-soldier looms up ahead of them and the damning evidence of their own partisan demagoguery in Congress hovers over their rear to estop complaint. It is only the great people behind all, who are taxed ten dollars apiece for every man, woman and child, or from fifty to seventy-five dollars for every adult male, to pay for this outrageous robbery, that may groan under the iniquitous burden.

AN ABUSE OF PATRIOTISM.

Pensions to the disabled ex-Union soldier and his family was and is a sacred trust. The laws under which he had entered service had been enlarged and liberalized year after year by political competition until it seemed as if there was nothing left to be done to the soldier's memory. It was at this stage, on the eve of a national election, that the political demagogues in Congress rushed in with the great pension robbery and vied with each other in shoveling out the public money for votes. How contemptibly mean sounds the hue and cry over John Sherman's carpentering by the side of the pension robbery! One hundred million, my dear reader, is more than the annual interest on the public debt. It is nearly half the entire expenses of the Government. Just think what the Government could do with $100,000,000 a year for two or three years. We might have the finest navy in the world. We might have a subsidized shipping that would give to the United States the commerce of the world and make us the mistress of the seas. We might own in the Government's name, for the use of the people and their heirs forever, the principal lines of telegraph and railroad. We might open up the Mississippi River traffic to the benefit of ten millions of people who live and labor in the great valley. With $500,000,000 we might have all of these and lay the foundation of permanent prosperity and power the greatest on the face of the earth.

The Ignorance of Educated Men.

From the London World.

Even shrewd and clear-headed men of the world, who are supposed to be au courant with everything, and who have great opportunities of picking up miscellaneous information at their disposal, exhibit a degree of nescience upon a host of matters, certainly not wanting in breadth or popularity of interest, which is little less than astounding. They have, perhaps, a correct apprehension of the motives and the character of the latest joint-stock company, but on politics, foreign and domestic, or any question connected with literature, science, art or history, they have not a single idea except such as are derived from the newspapers, which give them their sole mental pabulum. It is surprising how high men of real brains and application may climb in professions that are learned and intellectual, and yet how infinitesimally little they pick up of general culture or of insight into the rationale of events, past or contemporary. There are, of course, in England hundreds of lawyers whose minds are embellished with every kind of knowledge, whose intellectual treasure-house is rich in a multitude of delicate thoughts and fancies, who have traveled widely, seen much, heard much and forgotten nothing; who would have been bishops if they had gone into the church, and would have won for themselves the highest niche in the temple of fame if they had taken to literature. Yet lawyers, as a rule, whether barristers or advocates, are not men eminent for intellectual accomplishments. Their conversation alternates between shop and slang. As much may almost be said of the politicians of the period. The average member of the Parliament is one of the most unideaed, unintelligent people imaginable. He can talk to the house, and he can sometimes talk over his constituents. Very likely he belongs to the Garrick or the Athenæum, but in general society he is nearly speechless, and when he tries to be facetious in a country-house, his best jokes are memories of Gosset's room.

DOG-FIGHTING.

A Beastly Exhibition Near New York City—High Sport.

From the New York Sun, 12th.

A fight for $1,000 occurred yesterday in a barn within twenty miles of this city, between Tony Pastor, a white dog, two years and a half old, owned by W. Russell, a dog fancier, of Boston, and a yellow dog, named Boxer, from Fall River. Tony Pastor fought and killed the famous Tige, and also beat the brindle slut Fly in forty minutes. Boxer is seven years old, and is also a celebrated fighter. He killed a Woburn dog of fame, in a recent fight, after a battle of three hours and twenty minutes. Piles of money were wagered at 50 to 40, Tony Pastor being the favorite. Each weighed 23¾ pounds. Fully 250 sporting men sat on tiers of hard wooden benches surrounding the pit, eager to see the fray. As soon as the $1,000 was placed in the hands of the referee and time-keeper, he ordered the dogs to be brought in. Tony Pastor was the first to be led into the pit. He was in such fine trim that while he was being washed down the betting rose to 50 to 30 on him; but when the veteran Boxer was brought in a few minutes later he bit so savagely at his handlers that the betting became even. He did not take kindly to water. Being so near the end of an average fighting dog's life, he seemed to show as much knowledge of what was going to be done as his handler. The crowd was already heated with excitement, and the exclamation of one of the backers of Tony Pastor, "Look at that feller there 'andlin' of Boxer hall over arter 'e's washed!" started a growl along the benches that had hardly subsided when the dogs had been dragged to their respective corners.

At 2:30 o'clock Tony Pastor rushed across the pit and at once got an ugly shoulder hold on Boxer. The blood spurted from the yellow dog's shoulder as if it had been lanced. Thereafter he had only three legs to fight on. The betting suddenly stopped.

"Hit's all the world to a china orange now," said a Fall River man, and a New Yorker, who had put his money on Boxer, offered 100 to 50 against him. Nevertheless, the struggle between the dogs, whose writhing bodies were rolling about the pit in all kinds of contortions, ended in Boxer's breaking the hold on his shoulders. After one hour's hard fighting the betting changed, and 50 to 25 was offered on the Fall River dog, with no takers. After an hour and twenty minutes had passed the Fall River dog then went down, and thereafter fought as the under dog nearly all the way through. He did not get upon his feet again over six times, but he kept fighting all the time and inflicted terrible punishment, receiving heavy falls in return. At the end of three hours they were hauled off and well sponged.

Tony Pastor when let go crossed over the pit with a rush to renew the fight, Boxer going down from weakness as he received him and continuing the same tactics as before. At the end of another two minutes they were sponged again. When they were let go Boxer looked bewildered and showed no disposition to leave his corner. The referee immediately decided that his younger rival had won the fight. Good judges said that Boxer, being so old, would die from the effects of the battle. The first hold of Tony Pastor on his shoulder, they said, had done the business.

Leo XIII. Not to Leave Rome.

Rome Correspondence New York Tribune.

Of course, talk that has been going about as to the probability of the Pope shortly quitting Rome and Italy and carrying the Papacy into a second "Babylonish captivity," will have reached you. Malta; Miramar, the lovely residence which the unfortunate Maximilian left when he started on his ill-starred and ill-judged Mexican expedition on the shore of the Adriatic about three miles from Trieste; Monaco, the rouge et noir capital on the shore of the Mediterranean, and a location in the United States, have all been talked of. But you need not trouble yourself to inquire which of your cities is to be the new Head and Center of the Catholic world! It is all talk. The Pope will not leave Rome. But the talk has some meaning in it, too. It is true that various personages belonging to the more violent party in the Church have made suggestions to the rulers of the Hierarchy, proposing different schemes, and urging the Pope to free himself from the yoke and sight of the usurping Government, and shake the dust from off his feet against ungrateful, unbelieving Italy. And the Holy Father invariably takes all these suggestions "into serious consideration." But this really means an advertisement to Italy to this effect: "Mind what you are about! If you drive me too hard, you will force me to be off some of some of these days; and how would you like that?" The Pope knows very well that Italy, despite her usurpation and irreligion, would not like it at all. And he knows also, that in any such change he would, to use a vulgar phrase, "go further and fare worse." All the talk is, in fact, extremely analogous to that of a discontented wife, who is always threatening to apply for a separation. That there is much incompatibility of temper in this case is undeniable. But the parties, with whatever amount of bickering, will jog on together, and probably end by finding some not intorable modus vivendi. Another Vatican and another Basilica of St. Peter would not easily be found.

A Youthful Murderer.

Shelbyville (Ind.) Special to Cin. Commercial.

Last evening Frank Herner and Louis Marietta engaged in a quarrel that resulted in Herner stabbing Marietta in the back, inflicting a wound that will kill the boy. The little fellows were playing marbles, when a dispute arose, and Marietta, not wanting to fight, started to run, with Herner after him. Bertie Mathers, a companion of both, stepped out and stopped Marietta, and held him by the shoulder in front. Herner ran up behind, holding in his hand a large knife which he plunged into Marietta's back, under the left shoulder, the blade penetrating the lung, inflicting a wound that is fatal. Herner was immediately arrested and placed in jail to await the result of the wound. The little sufferer was carried to the residence of his father, Chas. Marietta, who is a plasterer, where he now is. This evening he is not expected to live till morning.

The Herner boy is a son of Peter Herner, the restaurant keeper, and is only fourteen years old, while the wounded boy is still younger, being but ten years old. The Marietta boy is not blamed for what he did, as he did not know or even expect that anything more than a common boys' fight would take place.

Another Palace.

From the Hour.

Sidney Dillon, one of Jay Gould's partners, is about to build the costliest and most ornate private residence on this continent. It is to be erected at the corner of Fifth avenue and Seventy-sixth street, and the house, with the grounds surrounding it, will cover thirteen full city lots, four of which will be on Fifth avenue.

THERE are more cures made with Hop Bitters than all other medicines.

UNEXPRESSED.

Fair are the hues of the sunset
Caught by the painter's art;
Sweet is the nightingale's singing
That opens the rose's heart;
Bright are the lover's fancies
Wrought from his dreams of bliss
And wild and sweet the rapture
That lies in love's first kiss.

But the fairest of all pictures
Are those no art can reach;
The joys that thrill us deepest
Lie beyond the power of speech;
The rarest tinted petals
Are hid in the rose's fold,
And the love that is divinest
Is the love that is never told.

WONDERFUL ESCAPE.

Five Men Blown One Hundred and Twenty Feet.

Deer Lodge (Montana) New Northwest, Nov. 4.

The principal grading of Clark's Fork Division of the Northern Pacific Railroad is being done in Hell Gate Canon, between New Chicago and Bear Mouth. About nine miles below New Chicago is what is known as "the lower rock cut." The grade is 12 or 15 feet above the Hell Gate River, and the rocky bluff out of which it is being blasted is 20 or 25 feet higher. On Tuesday morning of this week a "sand" or "crevice" blast was set in this bluff. The main blast consisted of seven kegs of black powder sunk to a depth of 15 or 20 feet, with two smaller auxiliary blasts set with shorter fuse to open the crevice. It being but a short distance below the company store Nelson Bennett, contractor, and F. H. Anderson, bookkeeper, walked down to see the shot. The fuses were fired, the men sought shelter, and two explosions followed in quick succession. Bennett said, "The shots have all gone off; let's go down," and started down. Some said, "No! the big shot is not off yet;" but he kept on, Anderson, Robert Dunn, Mike McCarty and Charles Reichenberg following. Some one back called out again, "The big shot isn't fired yet!" Bennett, who by this time had reached the portion of the bluff which was mined and saw the rock undisturbed, is reported to have replied, "No, but she's going now, and so are we." And sure enough they did. The seven-keg charge exploded with terrific force, throwing what Engineer Morgan estimates at 300 cubic yards of rock out toward and into the river and carrying with it the men named. Some of them were thrown 120 feet out into the river, being projected even further than the bulk of the rock which filled up the river and turned it out into the southern bank. Those witnessing the sight were filled with horror; and it was not supposed one of the unfortunate men would be found alive. Consternation prevailed for the moment, and the workmen flocked from all directions. Their astonishment was great when one by one the men began clambering out for the shore, and complete when every one was taken from the debris and river to the shore alive. All were more or less cut up about the head, and some had cuts and bruises on their bodies.

Their faces covered with dirt and blood, clothes mired and tattered and reeking with water, the presented a horrid spectacle, and thinking only skilful surgery could save them, a messenger sped to the telegraph office at New Chicago and requested immediate attendance of Dr. Mitchell, from Deer Lodge. When the Doctor arrived he found the men had all been taken to camp, their wounds bathed, plaster applied to the cuts, and not a bone was broken in any of the five men who had performed that marvelous vault through 120 feet of space on 300 yards of rock, propelled by villainous saltpetre. Mrs. Bennett, Mrs. McLain and Mrs. Wells were fortunately in the camp, and next to surgical attention, which was scarcely necessary, their ministrations had been skilful and successful. Mr. Bennett had some ugly face and scalp wounds, and Reichenberg also had a severe scalp wound. Anderson was somewhat bruised up. When Dr. Mitchell left Wednesday morning, all but one of the men were up and moving about comfortably, and it is not thought that any of them are at all dangerously hurt. Even before the Doctor arrived they were joking about the adventure, Bennett claiming he made the best jump and the others asserting he started "over base." It is certainly the most remarkable accident, considering the circumstances and escape, we have ever heard of. The displacement of rock was enormous, the bulk moved being as large as the McBurney House. We have made careful inquiry as to the facts and the distance stated as that which the men were thrown, as also the height of the cliff above the river, and the above is the least estimate made. Had the eruption been of earth, or had the men fallen clear in the water, or if there had been but one man and he had escaped, it would not have been so marvelous, but that five men should be hurled 120 feet in air among a thousand tons of granite, fall with it and in it and among it, and escape with only a few trivial cuts and bruises, is beyond comprehension.

An Ascension Postponed.

Little Rock (Ark.) Special Dispatch.

Yesterday was the day set by Moses Thompson, an aged colored man, living in the interior of Lonoke county, for his visible ascension to heaven. Thompson is in his ninetieth year. For twenty years past he has been a sort of "prophet, priest and king" among the colored race in the vicinity of his home. Lately he claimed to have received revelations direct from God. In one of these he was told to prepare for a sudden transition from the cares and toils of this world to the joys of paradise. A large crowd of his neighbors assembled at Thompson's house, preparatory to his departure for a better world. The company was sad and tearful. All appeared to realize that the occasion was one of deep solemnity. One prayer followed another. The colored sisters, between their sobs, shrieked out Scriptural passages. Thompson was terribly exercised. He alternately played, sung and shouted, and it required two or three men to hold him. His excitement increased every hour until midday, the time when he asserted he would ascend to heaven in a cloud. A sudden shower cooled the ardor of the "prophet" and his friends; and as the afternoon wore away without any miraculous exhibition of divine power, the audience began to melt away, leaving the old man to his own reflections. The failure to ascend as promised has weakened Thompson's influence among the colored people to a great extent, though he is reported as still being regarded with deep veneration. He spends nearly all his time in prayers. As an oracle he inspires mingled dread and terror, as many of his prophecies concerning mundane matters are said to have been fully verified by subsequent events. Many of his colored friends yet cherish the idea that he will be transported bodily to the skies when he and they least expect it.

Dying in Jail.

From the Columbia Journal.

The oldest, and doubtless the richest, convict in the Ohio Penitentiary, is Horace Brooks, age seventy-four years, whose long imprisonment is likely to be soon terminated by a large rose cancer, which has appeared upon his forehead. He was received at the penitentiary November 10, 1850, under a life sentence for murder in the second degree, and has therefore been in the prison thirty-one years. He owned a farm in the suburbs of Cleveland through which a railroad passed; the cars ran over and killed some of his sheep, and to avenge this injury Brooks obstructed the track, threw off a train, and killed five persons. He was indicted for murder by the grand jury of Cuyahoga county, tried in the courts of that county, and sentenced to the penitentiary for life. At the time of the conviction he was a wealthy man, and the property he then owned has become extremely valuable, having become a part of the City of Cleveland.

Washington's Flask Takes Its Turn.

From the Cleveland (Ohio) Leader, Nov. 8.

There is on exhibition at the Leader office an earthenware flask which was once the property of the immortal George Washington. It is a remarkable piece of crockery, bearing the appearance of earthenware covered with a film of glass. It is now the property of Mr. George Stokes, an English gentleman, who arrived in Cleveland last Saturday, having first landed on the shores of America on the preceding Wednesday. This interesting relic came into the possession of Mr. Stokes through his grandmother, Mrs. Margaret Nash, an English lady who acted as housekeeper for Miss Spark, a daughter of Capt. Spark, to whom the flask was given by George Washington while the former was in Philadelphia on a visit. Capt. Spark was a relative of the Washington family, and during his life-time highly prized this souvenir of his distinguished kinsman. At his death the flask passed to his daughter, who, in her turn, gave it to Mrs. Nash, in whose family it has since been preserved rather as a curiosity than from any intrinsic value attached to it. The flask is an object of interest to many from the fact that it was undoubtedly once carried by George Washington.

Death of Mrs. Edwin Booth.

New York Special to Cincinnati Commercial.

Mary McVicker, wife of Edwin Booth, died to-day, after a long illness. Her death has been seen to be inevitable for a long time. Details cannot be obtained. Mrs. McVicker, at whose house Mrs. Booth died, positively refused to make any statements regarding the death, or the whereabouts of Mr. Booth. A painful family controversy lies back of this. Some of the Western papers have been filled of late with stories of Booth's alleged indifference and cruelty to his wife, all of which are denied by his friends, and utterly discredited by all those who believe Edwin Booth to be a man of gentle bearing, incapable of a mean action. It is believed that these stories originated with the McVickers, who seem for some strange reason to be bitterly hostile to Booth. A separation recently took place, Edwin Booth and his daughter going to the Brunswick Hotel from the Windsor, and Mrs. Booth going with her mother to other quarters. Mr. Booth, it is understood, is paying all the expenses. An explanation given of this is that Mrs. Booth's mania of late took the form of an intense aversion to her husband and his daughter. The recent story that Booth had in past years made over all his property to his wife, who had now, under Mrs. McVicker's influence, willed it all to her, is not believed by Booth's friends. It is said that Mrs. McVicker has in this way obtained a block of Chicago property which Booth presented to his wife, but nothing more.

Women Helping Women.

From the New York Herald.

Sensible women are about as rare in this world as sensible men, and one of the best proofs of this is that when anything undesirable happens to any particular class of women the remainder of the gentler sex call loudly upon men to reddress the wrong. For many years the first and generally the only recourse of a woman suddenly reduced to poverty has been her needle, and a wretched recourse it has been. As a consequence well-to-do women have raved about heartlessness of employers, and then gone coolly about their own shopping, "beating down" to the lowest possible figures the price of the very work upon which their unfortunate sisters have worn out their tempers and lives. Recently, however, some New York ladies have realized how great are their own opportunities for helping the needy members of their sex to obtain remunerative employment, and they have given expression to their convictions by organizing the "New York Exchange for Woman's Work," the society acting as an intermediary for those who can do woman's handiwork and those who want it done. The Exchange is at present holding a fair at its rooms, and the support that it receives will go far toward discovering whether women as a class do really and practically sympathize with those of their own sex who are in straitened circumstances, or whether they have only temporary heart-fluttering that never reaches the pocket.

Western Union's New Rival.

From the New York Sun, Nov. 11

The lines of the Mutual Union Telegraph Company will be formally opened for business next Monday. The company has its principal offices in this city at 45 William street, where about sixty-five operators have been at work for several days on unsolicited business. On Monday the company will be able to receive messages to the principal cities in the Union north of a line between Washington and St. Louis. About 300 offices, exclusive of those in the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, with which the company has a contract, will be open for business. The company has made a contract with the Lehigh Valley Railroad for the use of its telegraph system, and with the Brooklyn Bridge trustees for a cable of ten wires upon the bridge. The company leases private wires at 33 per cent less than the Western Union, and will begin to take general messages at ten per cent less than that company.

Eider-Down Ducks.

From a Norway Letter.

The beautiful eider-down ducks which abound in this cold latitude are a source of great revenue, and are the sole property of the inhabitants. They are protected by the laws of Norway, so that no stray sportsman is allowed to shoot them. I learned the mode of procuring the down: When the duck is about to lay she plucks down from her own breast, the male plucks it from his, and they spread a thick lining of it all over the nest. When the nest is completed the owner removes the down; the patient ducks fill it a second and a third time, when it is removed; but the fourth time it is allowed to remain. Thus the women and girls find enough to employ themselves in attending to these thousands of nests, while the men and boys mise and mend their nets and get fish for oil and curing.

A GRAND STEEPLE CHASE.

As if there were not sufficient excitement at the usual horse-race, these meetings on the turf nearly always close with a grand steeple chase. This kind of race combines all the excitement of the regular race, with the super-added element of danger which seems to give further zest to the sport. Horses, and good ones at that, often receive severe injuries, which render them practically useless for long periods. At least this was the state of affairs until owners and breeders of fine stock began to freely use ST. JACOBS OIL, the Great German Remedy for man and beast. This invaluable article to horsemen has so grown into favor on account of its phenomenal efficacy in diseases of domestic animals, especially the horse, that it would be difficult indeed to discover a horseman unacquainted with its magical potency. The Philadelphia

Easy Hour, in a recent issue says: "But one of the most important developments concerning ST. JACOBS OIL is the discovery that it has properties which are beneficial to the animal as well as to the human species. It has, of late, been in active demand among livery men and others for on horses suffering from sprains and sions. The most prominent instance of in this connection, is that relate David Walton, a well-known Fr keeps a livery stable at 1245 Nort street. Mr. Walton states tha boarding a valuable horse be Benjamin McClurg, also a North Twelfth street. A few the animal slipped and badly leg, making him very lame used two bottles of ST. JA animal and found with week, that there was no for the animal was as w

AMUSEMENTS.

GRAND OPERA-HOUSE.

The Comley-Barton Opera Company opened last night in "Olivette" to a splendid audience and got a glorious reception. The house was full and applause plentiful. The opera went as smoothly and effectively as on previous occasions, Mr. John Howson and Miss Catherine Lewis being, of course, the great features. Miss Lewis' fling in the farandole was a source of considerable delight to the gentlemen with barefooted heads who sat in the front of the house. This particular feature has always proved highly attractive, and a correspondent of a New York paper writes that some grangers have been known to mortgage their farms in order to raise money to get into the show. The singing throughout the opera is very good, and Howson and the others contribute a great deal of fun to the performance. "Olivette" will be kept on all week.

OLYMPIC.

"Sam'l of Posen" was presented to a large audience last night again and proved an agreeable diversion to all who witnessed it. M. B. Curtis, the star, was called before the curtain at the end of every act. Mrs. Curtis resumed her part of Celeste and the performance went on smoothly.

PEOPLE'S.

Geo. H. Adams in "Humpty Dumpty" is the attraction at this house and is drawing large audiences.

POPE'S.

"Won at Last" is being given here by the Steele Mackaye Company for the benefit of St. Luke's Hospital. Large and fashionable audiences are the rule. The play, which is good, is admirably presented and elegantly rendered.

If you are coughing or not, but feel the presence of a Cold in the system, use Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup and feel immediate relief. Price 25 cents a bottle.

A MILD-EYED MAN.

He Has Had the Honor of Removing Twenty-Six Citizens From Life.

Letter in New York Sun.

At Gunnison, Col., last August, while waiting for the small hours of the morning to come around, we were entertained with narratives illustrating the customs of the country, given by Dr. W. S. Cockrell, Lieuts. Febriger, Wagner and Wetherill, gentlemen connected with the United States army, and others familiar with life and death in the Western wilds. Dr. Cockrell, on being asked whether the reports of killing affrays were not greatly exaggerated, replied that some of them were, while in other cases the truth had never been told.

"There is a man," remarked the Doctor, indicating a medium-sized, mild-eyed person who stood in the doorway looking into the billiard-room of the Tabor House, "who has killed twenty-six men, and he is only 27 years of age. He is H. B. Masterson, of Dodge City, Kas. He killed his men in the interest of law and order. Once he shot seven men dead within a few minutes."

"How?"

"While in a frontier town news was brought to him that his brother had been killed by a squad of ruffians just across the street. Taking a revolver in each hand, for he shoots readily with both, in this manner [the Doctor here crossed his right wrist over his left in the form of an X], he ran over to avenge his brother. The murderers became terror-stricken when they saw him coming, and hastily locked the door. Masterson jumped square against the door with both feet, bursting it open at the first attempt. Then he sprang inside, firing immediately right and left. Four dropped dead in shorter time than it requires to tell it. The remaining three ran for their horses in a vain attempt to escape from the town. He followed them up so closely that before they reached the outskirts all three had bitten the dust.

"At another time," continued the Doctor, "two Mexican half-breeds, a father and son, became very troublesome in the mining camps. They were the sharpest shots in the country, working together with a precision that made them invincible. As soon as one had emptied the chambers of his revolvers he would reload under cover of the other. Many a miner had they murdered and relieved of his outfit and treasure. A standing reward of $500 was offered for their bodies or their heads. Finally, Masterson resolved to kill the half-breeds. They occupied a cabin in a little clearing in an almost inaccessible place in the mountains. One morning, hours before daybreak, Masterson crept to the verge of the clearing with a repeating-rifle in his hands. Hidden by a friendly bush, he reclined on a sack which he had brought from his horse, that he had fastened a mile away in a glen. Shortly after sunrise the door of the cabin opened wide enough to permit the shaggy head of the old man to protrude. After sweeping the boundaries of the clearing with searching eyes, the head was slowly withdrawn. In a few minutes the head reappeared followed by a body with a belt of pistols strapped around his waist and a rifle slung over his shoulders. The old man carried a water-pail, and at his side walked the son, fully armed. Masterson covered the old man with his rifle over a path to and from a spring a hundred yards or so from the cabin at right angles. The father and son were conversing earnestly, seemingly unwilling to re-enter the cabin, before the door of which they stood for some time. Thirty minutes passed, which seemed hours to Masterson, before he could obtain what he considered a favorable shot. Finally, the old man made a move which uncovered his son. Masterson took advantage of his opportunity, and the young man fell to rise no more. Before the smoke revealed from whence the shot had come the old man was a corpse alongside of his boy. Cutting off their heads, Masterson placed them in his sack, and started to exhibit his trophies in order to obtain the promised reward. A two-days' ride under a hot sun swelled and disfigured the heads so that they were unrecognizable, taking advantage of which the authorities refused to pay the reward."

All business or news letters or telegrams should be addressed POST-DISPATCH, 111 North Fifth street.

The POST-DISPATCH has a LARGER CITY CIRCULATION, on each day of publication, than ANY OTHER PAPER published in St. Louis. Advertisers are at all times welcome to call and satisfy themselves of the strict accuracy of this claim.

OUR distinguished Chief of Police may find it more difficult to close up newspapers in this city than it is to close up gambling-houses.

WE are pleased to see that when the Chief of Police has occasion now to send for people he goes through the formality of swearing out a warrant after five days of solemn deliberation.

THE man who attempted to blackmail JAY GOULD is undoubtedly insane, as he says. No human being in the full possession of his faculties would ever attempt to get money out of JAY GOULD.

JUDGE FOLGER has taken charge of the money vaults of the Government and there is a very general hope that if he builds a new house in Washington City he will employ his own mechanics.

OUR revolutionary ancestors made a splendid struggle in behalf of independence and human liberty and we are always willing to hustle in behalf of free speech, free press and the right to criticise the public acts of public men.

THE Washington Judge who is trying the GUITEAU case understands his business. He doesn't believe that it is necessary to have a jury of dolts in a murder trial. All he asks is men of intelligence, able to weigh and judge testimony regardless of bias.

THE time may come in this city, we presume, when a newspaper can be deprived of the privilege of commenting on the official acts of a Police Chief and prevented from giving him advice in behalf of the public. When that time comes we will transfer our publication office to the Russian Empire.

HAVING committed three or four inexcusable and stupid blunders Mr. Chief of Police KENNETT backs them up to-day by committing another—the most serious of the lot. Following in the footsteps of BOWMAN will prove to be a disastrous business for Mr. KENNETT, we fear. We really feel sorry for the misguided young fellow.

IN his exclusive negro organ, Mr. J. MILTON TURNER has the nobility of soul to say that he is glad to see that there are twelve Republicans in the School Board of St. Louis, who can, in a magnificent way, "rise above party" and rebuke by their votes the effort to convert the schools into a political machine. Mr. TURNER'S outburst of virtue almost surprises us.

THE two foreign artists who were depended on to produce a sensation in the Western amusement world this season—PATTI and ROSSI have fallen flat in New York. Those New Yorkers are certainly not losing their appreciation of foreigners who come over here and bag our money and then go back and laugh at us. It will be necessary for us wild Westerners to make them ashamed of themselves.

A GENIUS for vital statistics has discovered that the six healthiest cities in the United States are Knoxville, New Haven, Portland, San Francisco, Cleveland and Lawrence. The unhealthiest are Charleston, Memphis, Lynn, Chicago, New York and St. Louis. St. Petersburg is the unhealthiest city in the world, and is followed by Malaga, Alexandria, Warsaw and Buda-Pesth. In New York the deaths exceed the births by 1,000 a month, or 12,000 a year.

A GRAND tariff convention is being held in Chicago this week. All the big manufacturers are on hand, including old Subsidy ROACH. As a great many manufacturers are suffering from over-production and low prices, it is presumed that the convention will ask Congress for a little more Protection. The movement may take the shape of a petition for a Government subsidy for all persons engaged in manufacturing articles to be sold to agriculturists.

GUITEAU is quite confident that Mr. GARFIELD'S death was the result of malpractice. He has the data to show that the doctors and surgeons killed him in the most unscientific manner, several weeks after they solemnly agreed that he would recover. He admits that he was a sort of accessory but that he was carrying out the wishes of the Lord. It is to be hoped that the Lord will fill the twelve inspired men who are to sit on the jury in this case with the importance of hanging the scoundrel who made it possible for the physicians to kill the President.

IN justice to the Police Board, which has unjustly suffered somewhat in public estimation, Mr. SIMMONS emphatically declares that the periodical lawyer, BOWMAN, does not in any way represent the Board. He never had a consultation with the board and no member knew that he intended to make the assault on Mr. JOHNSON that he made in the meeting last Tuesday, until he was at work with his affidavits. He appeared simply as the representative of his esteemed friend Mr. KENNETT, and only had the permission of the Board to ask Mr. JOHNSON a few questions on behalf of his client. For our own part we are satisfied that Mr. SIMMONS has too much character and honor to identify himself in any way with the transactions for which the Board is so sharply criticised by the public.

GUITEAU, the assassin, on being arraigned in court yesterday, proceeded to second the line of defense laid down by his counsel by attempting to play the insanity dodge. He cut some remarkable capers, but his performance as a lunatic was scarcely up to the standard. He is too well convinced himself that he is a crazy man, and he is too well posted about the taint of insanity which runs through his interesting family. Whenever a man realizes that he is insane he is sane at that moment. It is a peculiarity of lunatics that they never regard themselves as anything but the wisest of human beings. Mr. GUITEAU is simply a fanatical fool with an exaggerated appetite for notoriety.

IT is proposed to put an ordinance through the St. Louis Municipal Assembly requiring all manufacturers and owners of buildings using large quantities of coal to employ some sort of apparatus to consume smoke. This is certainly a move in the right direction. No city in the country suffers more from smoke and soot than St. Louis, unless we except Pittsburg. The cost to the city in the shape of clothing, carpets, mercantile stock and general manufacturing must be thousands of dollars per year. On the 21 of January next a smoke consumption ordinance goes into effect in Cincinnati. We can have our legislation well under way by that time and if the experiment proves successful over there we can proceed with it. If not we can abandon the scheme.

THE NEXT CONGRESS.

The situation in the next Congress, which meets in December, is thus summed up, all the elections for the year being over with one exception: The nine vacancies in the House that have occurred since the elections of last fall are filled, with one exception. OSSIAN E. RAY, of New Hampshire, takes the place of EVARTS W. FARR, deceased; SAMUEL DIBBLE, of South Carolina, will fill the seat of M. P. O'CONNOR; deceased; JOHN T. RICH, of Michigan, will take Senator CONGER'S place, and NELSON DINGLEY, of Maine, that of Senator FRYE. Senator LAPHAM'S seat in the House will be filled by JAMES W. WADSWORTH, and Senator MILLER'S by CHARLES R. SKINNER, both New Yorkers. FERNANDO WOOD'S successor is JOHN HARDY. These seven changes are of men only, not of party. Senator ALDRICH'S seat will be filled on the 22d instant, probably by the election of ex-Gov. CHARLES C. VAN ZANDT, certainly by a Republican. The single political change occurred in the Eleventh New York District, where ROSWELL P. FLOWER, Democrat, was elected to succeed LEVI P. MORTON, Minister to France and a Republican. This change of one is, however, sufficient to rob the Republicans of an absolute majority of the House. Out of 293 members they will have 146, while the Democrats will muster 137—leaving a balance of ten members, consisting of Greenbackers Readjusters and Independents. Out of this squad of ten the Republicans need but one recruit, and there is no reason to doubt their ability to get what they want. The Republicans, in other words, will organize the House, and proceed to oust enough Democrats to render any further bargaining with the squad of eccentrics unnecessary. The Senate will be made up on the first Monday in December of 37 Democrats, 37 old line Republicans, and two new Republicans, MAHONE and DAVIS. This will be the situation, barring deaths, until March 4, 1883, when Senator JOHNSTON will be succeeded by a Republican, Senator KELLOGG by a Democrat, Senator DAVIS by one of the old guard, and Senator MCPHERSON, in all likelihood, by a Republican. Treachery in Virginia has, in short, given the Republicans control of the Senate until 1885.

SOME time ago the ladies of the Sabbath Association of this city publicly thanked Gov. CRITTENDEN for refusing to pardon a man convicted of Sabbath-breaking. In response the Governor wrote the zealous ladies a letter which was read at their regular meeting yesterday. He informs the ladies that no man deserves thanks for doing his duty. This is a great mistake. The man who performs his duty is a curiosity and he should always have public recognition of some sort. The Governor further tells his sisters that good and true citizens are always ready to do their duty; that all laws should be enforced; that he believes in the observance of the Sabbath, and that this is a Christian State, so recognized the world over. He adds further:

> We have tried Christianity and succeeded under it as a people, as a Government, fully believing in that divine sentiment, "Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people," and we are unwilling at this period of our advancement to forsake it for Ingersollism with all of its crudities and abandonment to those passions of unrestrained and unregenerated natures which inevitably lead to misery, crime and punishment. St. Louis has excellent Police Commissioners, who know their duty and have discretion and nerve in its performance. I do not think it would be prudent in me to make any suggestions to them in the line of that duty. God bless the good and true women of our State. If Christianity is ever preserved by mortals it will be by the women of our land.

As the ladies expressed it, this is "a beautiful letter," but it only refers them to the Police Commissioners, to be referred by them to the Mayor and by the Mayor back to the Governor. The thing that strikes us about this "beautiful letter" is the eminently religious tone that runs through it like a golden stream of molasses over a heap of buckwheat cakes. And yet there is a doubt expressed as to whether Christianity is enduring. The Governor says that if it "is ever preserved by mortals it will be by the women of our land." By whom will it be preserved if not by mortals and why are there doubts in the mind of our most excellent and religious Governor as to its ultimate preservation? That's what we want to know.

IN her interesting work on her "voyage" in America, Mlle. COLOMBIER, the fat and unwholesome-looking "juvenile lady" of the BERNHARDT Combination, speaks of St. Louis as a city the inhabitants of which are given to boasting of the healthfulness of their location. They regard it in winter, she says, as the rival of Nice and Pau. A couple of the pages of her book are devoted to the discomfiture of the editor of the Globe-Democrat, who insists that the rules about bouquets for minor artists will not be enforced when he sends Mlle. COLOMBIER a floral trophy. But they are, just the same. The observant lady found a jeweler in St. Louis who paid Mr. JARRETT, the manager of BERNHARDT, $1,000 for the privilege of announcing in the newspapers that the distinguished star had purchased $10,000 worth of diamonds at his establishment.

THE whisky-makers of the West are dissatisfied with the fluctuating, uncertain condition of the market and they are trying to imitate the iron manufacturers by organizing a union to cut down the production and thus strengthen prices. A Mr. MILLER, distiller at Riverton, Illinois, has been in Cincinnati this week on this benevolent mission, and has found the whisky men all in a congenial frame of mind. The proposition is to reduce the production one-half. About the only substantial industry that doesn't seem to be suffering from over production this year is the newspaper business.

PERSONALITIES.

—A London paper says that Ouida is sick. Ouida must have been reading some of her own novels.

—"I shall do my annual retiring forever from politics act in about two weeks."—S. J. Tilden.

—The Brooklyn Eagle puts the amount of political pocket money disbursed by Mr. Astor at $100,000.

—In a divorce suit at Brooklyn, on Monday, the respondent (wife) not making an appearance, nor entering a defense, a photograph of the lady was introduced and admitted in evidence.

—An exchange says that "the four principal poets of Norway are Jansen, Bjornson, Ibsen and Lie." We don't know what Bjornson and Ibsen mean, but Mr. Lie's folks evidently knew what they were about when his christening took place.

—A dispatch from Denver says that last Friday two passenger coaches of the Colorado Central train were blown from the track two miles from Georgetown by a severe wind storm. This is the first intimation that Mr. Talmage has been lecturing in Colorado.

—The three sons of Oakes Ames have built a hall in North Easton, Mass., in memory of their father, and will formally dedicate it to the use of the citizens on the 17th inst. Would the old man regard this as putting his money "where it would do the most good"?

—Philip Sullivan, one of the boy train-robbers of Arkansas, lately clapped into prison on a seventy-years' term for his villainy, died of homesickness after a few days' imprisonment. This ought to be a warning to ignorant juries and vindictive law officers who have been sending in these sensitive, lily-like train-robbers to jail. What they really need is a home, where, surrounded by all that wealth and art can provide, they may live to a green old age and die happy.

Our Fire-Alarm Telegraph.

ST. LOUIS, November 14, 1881.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Your issue of the 12th inst. contains an article based upon an interview between Mr. Edgar H. Brown, city manager of the Western Union Telegraph Company, and your reporter, relative to the Fire-alarm Telegraph lines. Mr. Brown stated to your reporter that a few days previous, while going over house-tops with an Eastern electrician, they "made discoveries that explain the poor manner in which the fire-alarm telegraph lines work, as a general rule." When asked to relate these discoveries in detail, he says they found the wires in a "horrible condition." They were not properly insulated, that they run along and against walls, that hooks used to fasten wires to corners of buildings are not in proper shape, etc., etc. I am not surprised at Mr. Brown's discoveries, but it certainly is astonishing to find Mr. Brown giving vent to such nasty and unwarrantable expressions.

The condition he found those housetop wires in is very easily explained. All the wires engaged in that district which is bounded on the west by Seventeenth street, south by Marine avenue, east by the levee and north by Mound street have been rebuilt in last few years and placed on good substantial poles; hence, Mr. Brown and his able electrician have been very careful in examining "dead wires," or, in other words, wires that have long since been abandoned and are not used by this department for any use whatever. About a year and a half ago this department, through Mr. Ferd. Gaesche, Commissioner of Supplies, advertised a number of miles of the best of these housetop hues for sale, and, if I remember rightly, Mr. Brown was the cause of all bids being rejected, by stating that he wished to put in a bid and complaining that he had not been notified in time of such a sale. The wires were advertised again, which disgusted former bidders, but at the expiration of the time in which the bids closed, still Mr. Edgar H. Brown was not heard from. I merely state this to show that Mr. Brown cannot be ignorant of the fact that the city owns a multitude of abandoned house-top wires. These wires would have been removed long ago had there been available funds at the disposal of the head of this department with which to do so. Further, Mr. Brown evidently does not know the fire alarm wires from those of the American District and Telephone Companies. We place no rubber-hook or insulators of any description on cornices of buildings; therefore all of those hooks which he claims were in an improper shape do not belong to the city, but to the companies before mentioned. Lastly Mr. Edgar H. Brown states very broadly indeed that the fire alarm telegraph works very poorly as a general rule. I challenge him to prove that assertion. Instead of that the workings of this department will compare favorably with those of any other fire alarm telegraphic system of its size in this or any other country. Thanking you for your valuable space, I am yours respectfully, etc,

ERNEST HILGENDORF,

Resting in Security.

ST. LOUIS, November 15, 1881.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

If not criminal libel, allow me through your live, valuable and enterprising paper to make my acknowldgements to the Chief of Police for his publicly announced assurance that he will not further raid the gambling rooms. Of late I have been deterred from occasional evening visits at these cosy resorts to see the sights and "chip in" slightly, for fear of raids and unenviable notoriety. Now, by the authorized announcement of the Chief, my fear and trembling has been removed and with impunity can resume my calls without molestation. CLERK.

A Little Moral Support.

CAIRO, ILL., November 14.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

It is with the most profound interest I am watching the concern you and a few more citizens of St. Louis are taking in the fight against those men who, through perjury and bribery, are shielding those who are a disgrace to the city, and keeping from your State men that prefer locating in a State where law, life and virtue are protected, to investing in a community where such pollution and corruption is protected for the sake of gain. In entering your State at Joplin on Sunday, I could not tell Sunday from any other day. As I came through your state to Jefferson City I found all the old fossils in a public hotel gambling; then, coming to your city, I found such a state of affairs that I turned from your State in disgust. Fight on in the good cause. Your noble State and good citizens will be better when purged of those cancers, which are eating out the heart blood of all that is valuable and good. Respectfully,

LORENZO PEDRO.

The Schoolmaster Abroad.

ST. LOUIS, November 15, 1881.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Quite a number of stupid, inexcusable blunders appear in a single column of the Republican of the 14th inst. In the Associated Press dispatches from Great Britain, we have as follows: "Thomas Beasey, speaking at the Liberal banquet," etc., etc. The speaker referred to was Thomas Brassey. In the same column we have the following:

"The Dominion.—The Nova Scotia Legislature.—Sydney, N. S., November 13.—In the legislative assembly Premier Sir Henry Parkes proposed a vote of censure upon Garret, for his conduct in connection with the appropriation compensation," etc.

Every intelligent schoolboy knows that Sydney is the capital of New South Wales, Australia. The next item of news in the Republican informs us of the trial of "Te Whiti, Masse Chief, etc., etc." Please inform old 1808 that Te Whiti is a Maori chief. J. E. W.

Mr. Foster Not Interested.

ST. LOUIS, November 15.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In yesterday's paper you published my name as being connected with the gambling-house No. 604½ Washington avenue. I desire to inform you and the public that I sold out all my interest in the above house over eight months ago and am not connected with it or any other establishment, and I would ask you to please make the correction in the next issue of your paper. Yours respectfully,

DAVID W. FOSTER.

It is a mistake to say that no one connected with the Star Route business has suffered or will suffer. Postmaster General James, who tracked the robbers out, is to be bounced.

Criminal libel with bond attachments is the favorite pastime of eccentric public men of this century. Beyond some temporary annoyance it appears to be a harmless pastime.

The Garfield Monument Fund.

The Garfield monument fund is gradually increasing, and if the contributions continue to come in the way they have since September 30th, when the fund was first started, the $4,000 needed to erect the monument will soon be obtained. The total sum now in hand is $2,326 10.

The following are the names of contributors and contributions added to the list to-day: Black Dowler, Beardstown, Ill., $1; Mathew Laflin, Chicago, Ill., $5; Geo. H. Laflin, Chicago, Ill., $5; P. Q. Kellogg, St. Louis, $55; employes of Post-office $6 50.

The residue, real and personal, is left to the only son, Theodore, who is appointed executor. The estate is valued at $13,000.

The Court of Appeals to day, denying a writ of mandamus applied for against Judge Edwards to command him to enter judgment upon a verdict in a suit, says: "We shall refuse to grant the writ in this and in all cases where it appears from the return that the verdict was obtained by fraud on the part of a party in interest or at least where a sufficient ground appears for relief in equity against operation of the judgment."

ANOTHER ALLEGED LIBEL.

This Time Chief Kennett Follows Bowman's Example

And Swears Out a Warrant Against Jos. Pulitzer, Editor of the P.-D.

This morning Chief of Police Kennett swore out a warrant charging Joseph Pulitzer, editor of the POST-DISPATCH, with libel. The paper is as follows:

State of Missouri, City of St. Louis, ss. In the St. Louis Court of Criminal Correction. State of Missouri vs. Joseph Pulitzer, charged with libel.

Bernard Dierkes, Assistant Prosecuting Attorney of the St. Louis Court of Criminal Correction, now here in court, on behalf of the State of Missouri, information makes as follows: That Joseph Pulitzer, in the city of St. Louis, on the 11th day of November, 1881, then and there being a person of an evil and malicious disposition, and maliciously, wickedly and unlawfully contriving and intending, as much as in him lay, to injure the good name and reputation of one Ferdinand B. Kennett, then and there the Chief of Police for and within the city of St. Louis, the said Joseph Pulitzer did in the city aforesaid, at the time aforesaid, of and concerning the said Ferdinand B. Kennett, willfully, maliciously, wickedly and unlawfully compose and publish and cause to be composed and published in a newspaper known as the St. Louis POST-DISPATCH, published and circulated in the city of St. Louis, in the State of Missouri, under the direction and control of said Joseph Pulitzer, the following false and slanderous words according to the tenor and effect following:

"Under the direction of the police authorities a poor outcast woman was dragged from her home the other night, locked up in a calaboose cell and denied the privilege of communicating with the outer world. A letter which she wrote was intercepted. The object was to compel her to utter some charges against a prominent citizen, and to this end she was given to understand that she had been incarcerated on the complaint of this citizen, whom it was deemed highly advisable to blacken. Failing in their purpose, the police turned the creature out, no charge whatever being entered against her. Chief Kennett explains that the woman was locked up by him because he understood she was trying to blackmail somebody. This abuse of police power must not go unrebuked. Mr. Kennett's explanation certainly goes for naught. What right had he to seize and confine in a dungeon this poor unfortunate? He committed the outrage upon the simple theory that the police have the disposition of the bodies of all persons belonging to the depraved and vicious classes. This is false and flagitious. Mr. Kennett had no more right to arrest and detain this woman on this pretext than he has to arrest the most respectable citizen of St. Louis without warrant. The idea that a policeman can touch people on the shoulder and march them off to the lock up at will and the further idea that the police official has a right to employ the power of his office in carrying out his personal spites and vengeances must be exploded. This act is a dark and ineffaceable stain on the record of Chief Kennett."

So that the said Joseph Pulitzer the said Ferdinand B. Kennett, in manner and form aforesaid, unlawfully, wilfully, falsely and maliciously did libel and slander, contrary to the form of the statute in such case made and provided and against the peace and dignity of the State.

BERNARD DIERKES,
Assistant Prosecuting Attorney.

State of Missouri, City of St. Louis—ss.

Ferd. B. Kennett, being duly sworn, upon his oath says that the facts stated in the above information are true according to his best knowledge and belief.

FERD. B. KENNETT.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 15th day of November, A. D. 1881.

PHILIP H. ZEPP,
Clerk of the St. Louis Court of Criminal Correction. By Wm. L. Fitzgerald, Deputy Clerk.

Mr. Pulitzer did not wait for the warrant to beserved, but about noon voluntarily went up to the Four Courts, where the ceremony of giving a $500 bond for his appearance next week was laughingly gone through with. Mr. Bradley Lee, of the firm of Lee & Chandler, signed the bond. The case will come up in the Court of Criminal Correction next Wednesday a week, November 23. The case of Frank Bowman will come up next Friday.

Police Commissioner Cupples' Return.

Mr. Samuel Cupples arrived in town this morning with his family from the East. He reached his office shortly after 11 o'clock and passed into the inner sanctum, where he remained for some considerable time with Mr. Brookings one of the partners of the firm. The Rev. Dr. Wilson, presiding elder of the M. E. District, and a POST-DISPATCH reporter were in waiting without. Mr. Brookings invited Dr. Wilson to step within Mr. Cupples' private office and shortly reappeared with the announcement to the POST-DISPATCH reporter that Mr. Cupples must positively decline to be interviewed by any one in connection with the affairs of the Police Department or on any other business than that of the firm. Mr. Cupples had been absent for some time, said Mr. Brookings, and the business of the house required his first attention. He had not read the local papers recently, and was not posted in the occurrences of the past two weeks.

As the reporter withdrew a police officer arrived with the information that Circuit Attorney Harris would wait upon Mr. Cupples in half an hour.

The Boland Case.

Mr. Charles Noland, one of the attorneys for the State in the case of Morgan Boland, charged with making a corrupt voluntary oath, to-day made application for a special jury to try the case. An attorney for the defense was granted a request for a jury yesterday, and this morning Mr. Noland said, in moving the granting of a jury, that the case was of importance to this community and throughout the State and for this reason a jury whose verdict would be received without comment on the character of the makers was necessary. The motion is as follows:

"Now comes the State of Missouri through its officers, Chester Krum and Price and Noland, acting for the Prosecuting Attorney of this court, and moves the court to order a special venire to try the above named cause. In support of this motion the said Krum, Price and Noland, acting for the Prosecuting Attorney, represent and show to this court that heretofore, to-wit, November 14, A. D. 1881, the said defendant, through his counsel, demanded in this court a jury to try this cause and can not therefore have any valid or reasonable objection to having a jury summoned from the best known and most intelligent men in this community. This cause is one of vast interest to the people of this city, and it is proper that the jury which finally tries this cause should come from citizens so well known and so far above suspicion that the verdict can be accepted by the people as an honest and fair one."

The case was set for 1 p. m. to morrow, but Judge Cady said he did not think that it would come to trial. Mr. Noland frankly stated that there was some question about the matter when Judge Cady refused to issue a venire for the special jury, as he doubted his power to do so.

"SAM'L OF POSEN."

The Innocent Drummer Once More on the Road to Happiness and Luck.

The trouble in the "Sam'l of Posen" company has not yet come to an end. Frank Curtis, the manager, has turned over the company to E. C. Sweat, his St. Louis partner, who will look after his own and Frank's interest while the latter is in Portland, Me., whither he has gone to reside. No sale has been made of any share of the play, and its ownership still stands as it did yesterday, M. B. Curtis owning a half interest, Frank one-fourth and E. C. Sweat one-fourth. Mrs. M. B. Curtis resumed playing the part of Celeste last night. About 7 o'clock she appeared in the dressing room of the theater, where she found Miss Laura Wallace dressing for the part. Mrs. Curtis informed Miss Wallace that she would play Celeste; so Miss Wallace withdrew, and the performance went on as of old. The re-appearance of Mrs. Curtis is understood to be the result of an exciting interview which took place between Manager Spalding, of the Olympic, and M. B. Curtis, yesterday morning. In this interview, it is said, Mr. Spalding said he would close the theater and cancel the engagement if Mrs. Curtis did not appear in the play. He meant exactly what he said, and the "Sam'l of Posen" people felt that he would do as he promised. Mrs. Curtis, therefore, to preserve harmony for the time being and to permit of the completion of the engagement, took her place in the company once again, although she has not obtained a contract, and her salary is still at $40 per week. The St. Louis public are indebted to Mrs. Curtis for the pleasure of having "Sam'l of Posen" with them all week.

Mrs. M. B. Curtis explained to a POST-DISPATCH reporter to day that she had never demanded $140 from the management of "Sam'l of Posen," and had never asked for any increase of salary. She merely wanted the management to assure her that they would not discharge her without notice and take from her the part of Celeste, which she has created and in which she has made as much reputation as her husband in his eccentric part. She was ready to play Celeste Sunday, but Mr. Sweat refused to allow her to go on. She will play with the company during the St. Louis engagement at least. Mrs. Curtis is really great in her peculiar role, and it is safe to say that the long and careful study she has given to it and the art she brings to her interpretation of the part make it quite impossible to get anybody to do the work so well, although it is said Frank Curtis has gone East to get the manuscript of Celeste with a view to giving it to somebody else.

THE SNY BOTTOMS.

The Richest Section of Illinois Completely Under Water.

A reporter met Mr. Craig Alexander this morning, who is just back from the Sny country, and asked him what the prospects are in that very wet section of the commonwealth of Illinois. "Everything is under water," he said. "The whole country is covered five and six feet deep. The water is in the first floors of all the houses, and you can say that the Sny country is ruined. The whole district is washed out, and you know it is sixty miles long by six wide."

"It was all under cultivation, too?"

"Yes, it was all in wheat and smocked corn, of course, the wheat is ruined, and the corn well on its way to New Orleans."

"What do you estimate the damage?"

"It is impossible to say. It is so great, however, that it will never be repaired. The people there are ruined. You see they were drowned out in the spring, and the fall floods have completed the work. High water at this season of the year was never known before in the history of the Mississippi."

The United States Courts.

The criminal business before the United States District Court opened to-day with the attendance of the petit jury, and the trial of the first case on the criminal docket, that of the United States vs. C. Newmann, who was charged with perjury in making a false statement as surety on the bond of a cigar manufacturer. He was convicted and sentence was passed before recess, viz.: sixteen months in the penitentiary at hard labor. The recognizance was forfeited in the case of Oscar Loesch, who was charged with mailing an obscene postal card. Judgment was entered on a scire facias against G. Kooms and Sarah Kooms for $500. These parties were sureties for Mrs. M. D. Chapman, who was charged with sale of certain improper articles in violation of the statute. An entry of nolle pros was made in the cases of the United States vs. John Foley, C. Lowrey and John Holderle. Joseph A. Duffey entered a plea of guilty to a small case of violation of the revenue laws, and he was fined $1 and costs.

River Convention at St. Joe.

The Mississippi River Convention at St. Louis in October is already bearing fruit up and down the river. The city of St. Joseph is already out in a call for a convention for Missouri River improvement, to meet at St. Joe on November 29, to secure the interests of the Missouri River in any Congressional action that may be taken looking to the improvement of Western rivers. The St. Louis Merchant's Exchange has already been invited to send thirty delegates to the convention. Members of Congress and Governors of States and Territories in the Missouri Valley are invited, and it is expected that the convention will be a large, harmonious and effective one.

The Lard Taboo.

The break in the lard market this morning is said to be due to a rumor which was current in Chicago last evening that the French Government had interdicted the importation of American lard. Whether true or not, this rumor has certainly had an effect upon the market. The story was not current in St. Louis, and the operators here were in the dark as to the cause of the fluctuations. Several cable dispatches were sent to French correspondents to learn the truth of the rumors, but as yet no answers have been received.

New Suits Filed.

The following new suits were filed in the Circuit Court to day: Franz J. Spinner vs. Theresa Dantschmann, debt; Reinhard Lorum vs. Elizabeth Woehle et al., partition suit; Fritchey, administrator of Elizabeth Hebert, vs. Paul Harvey, William H. Graham and Joseph W. Givens, petition on bond; Abeles & Tanssig vs. Mullanphy Planing Mills Company, suit on notes. The record for the December term closes on Saturday.

Nolle Pros'ed

In the Criminal Court to-day the case of Geo. W. Martin, who was charged with bigamy, was nolle pros ed and the defendant discharged. The offense alleged was outside of statute limitations, and though a verdict was returned by the jury which tried the case it would not stand and the above disposition was accordingly made.

Cut in the Side.

About 6 o'clock last evening a difficulty arose between Patrick Byron and Terrance O'Donnell, in the former's saloon at the corner of Twenty-second and O'Fallon streets, during which O'Donnell cut Byron in the left side. O'Donnell was arrested but Byron refused to prosecute, and he was accordingly released.

THROUGH THE TEMPLE.

A Carondelet Avenue Cooper's Attempt at Suicide.

John Sears, a cooper living in the second story of 1556 Carondelet avenue, who has recently been released from the Work-house, returned to his home yesterday morning at 11 o'clock and told his wife that if she would give him his clothes he would leave her forever. She gave them to him and he went away. This morning he come back to his house again, threw down his clothes and called his wife to the door. She came out and he attempted to shoot her, but was prevented from doing so by his daughter Emelia, who took hold of his arm. After failing to kill his wife he turned his attention tohimself, and, placing the revolver to his left temple, sent a bullet spinning into his brain. His people gave an alarm, and the wounded and probably dying man was carried to the Dispensary and thence sent to the City Hospital. Dr. Carson gave it as his opinion that the man will die.

Sears is a worthless sort of fellow, who has been drinking and either neglecting or abusing his wife for the past twenty years. He is about 50 years of age and has four children, the oldest the girl Emelia, 20 years old, who told the POST-DISPATCH reporter the story of the suicide. The wife and children say they don't care whether he lives or dies, and that they do not want to see him again, dead or alive.

THE INVESTIGATION CLOSED.

An End of the Gambling Imbroglio as Far as the Police Board is Concerned.

The Police Board investigation of the charges of inefficiency brought by Gov. Johnson, which was announced for 2 o'clock this afternoon, did not begin on time. The board had a great deal of routine business on hand, which has been accumulating for some time, and it was this business which detained the board until 3 o'clock. Chief Kennett and all of the members of the board who were met announced the opinion that the investigation would go on this evening, as it had practically passed into the courts already, and in the courts it would find its proper scope. Up to 3 o'clock there was no indication of a desire for witnesses or attorneys from within the barred doors of the Commissioners' room.

Before anything was done, Mr. Simmons moved a sine die adjournment of the investigation proceedings. Mr. Cupples seconded the motion and it prevailed. It was stated that the matters relating to the investigation would be referred to the grand jury [illegible]

Gov. Johnson attempted to make a statement but was refused the privilege, at the request of Messrs. Maxon and Simmons. He then asked leave, as a citizen of the State of Missouri, to leave the room. His request was acceded to and the proceedings closed.

Cotton Lets Down.

Cotton started in on the up grade to-day, but the advance was not sustained and subsequently the feeling was weak and prices eased off. It seems to be the general impression that the top has about been struck, at least for this time. The advance was started in New York on the report that the next Agricultural Bureau report would be more unfavorable than any that had preceded it this season. A buying boom was started on this that gradually extended over the country and elevated prices sharply. Now it is learned that the bureau report will be that the crop in the Southern States shows no material change in condition since the preceding report, except in the Atlantic States, where there is an improvement in the top crop. If it is so, as some well-posted parties believe, that New York parties allowed the country to run prices up in order that they might get out a large line at good figures, it would seem as though they had now started in to let the market drop, and the drop to be a great one. Liverpool advices at the close were not encouraging to the bulls, as it closed weak at a decline of 1-16d below last evening, having earlier in the day sold higher.

ROBBED OF $17,000.

Five Burglars Get Away With an Ohio Man's Bags of Gold.

CHICAGO, November 15.—A Youngstown special says: Jesse Baldwin, of Boardman township, five miles south of the city, who created a sensation by appearing on the Treasury Department at Washington and demanding gold for $17,000 in bonds, was robbed this morning at 3 o'clock. He kept his money in an old-fashioned safe under the stairs in the hallway of his residence. The party of burglars numbered five. The family slept up stairs and the first intimation they had of burglary was a furious noise made by the blowing open of a safe with powder. George Lewis, Baldwin's son-in law, fired three shots at the robbers as they left the house with the bags of gold in their arms. The burglars fired back, but nobody was injured on either side. The robbers had previously taken two of Baldwin's horses and his best carriage from the stable and had them standing near the residence. They jumped into the carriage and escaped, going south. Baldwin has offered a reward of $1,000. It is just learned that the carriage broke down four miles from Baldwin's house.

France.

PARIS, November 15.—Gambetta presented himself with his colleagues in the Chamber of Deputies to-day and explained the policy of the ministry. He said: "We desire a policy which will advance gradually and wisely towards reform. We rely on finding a majority which will afford us its frank support in both chambers and upon a disciplined public service. We propose to reform the judicial system, perfect national education and complete military legislation. We wish by means of treaties to extend our commercial relations. We wish to strictly follow the provisions of the concordat and to maintain peace at home and abroad. These reforms will suffice us and enable us to reach a fresh stage of progress.

CATTLE—Fair to good native and Southwest butcher stock in light supply and in active demand. Total offerings small and mainly of common to medium mixed butcher stock, which were slow of disposal at low prices. Shippers and exporters were on hand and wanted good and prime native shipping steers, but none offered. Stock and feeding steers in light supply and dull. Grass Texans, but few offered, and wanted at strong prices. Scalawags dull. Milch cows with calves in demand. Ruling quotations steady.

A Stray Horse in Court.

J. M. Carpenter, in the employ of the firm of Cunningham & McAllister, entered a replevin before Justice Monahan yesterday for the possession of a black mare, which was unlawfully detained by Wm. Bosbyshell, a livery stable keeper. The facts of the case are that the police found the horse and wagon wandering around the street and caught it, and delivered it to the keeping of Bosbyshell until it should be called for by the rightful owners. When the owners of the horse came for it he presented a bill for nine days keeping, and refused to give the horse up until they paid it. The case came up before Justice Monahan yesterday, and was held under advisement until to-day, when judgment was rendered in favor of the plaintiff for possession of the horse and one cent damages.

MORE SMOKE THAN FIRE.

The Cold Storage Company's Establishment Gutted.

A Box Factory Burned—Losses and Insurance.

At 8:30 this morning a porter in the wholesale grocery store of J. M. Anderson & Co. saw smoke pouring out of the top story of the building No. 214 North Commercial alley, in the rear of his store. He rushed around to Main and Olive streets and turned on an alarm from box 35, which soon brought the engines to the spot. How long the fire had been burning nobody can tell. The building No. 214 Commercial alley was occupied by the St. Louis Cold Storage Company, of which Mr. Geo. W. Woodworth was superintendent. A boy in Mr. Woodworth's employ stated to the reporter that he had noticed smoke in the top story of the building as early as yesterday morning. He told some men who were fixing the elevator, and they said it did not amount to anything, and probably was an escape from the flue in the next house. At any rate, the fire broke out at the hour named and soon spread throughout the building, which was four stories high on Commercial alley and five on the Levee. The engines were promptly on the ground, but the Salvage Corps had read the alarm wrong, and Capt. Evans and his men ran in the wrong direction until they arrived at the house of Engine Company No. 18, and then followed this company to the fire.

When the engines arrived,

had not only spread throughout the building, but had communicated with the building adjoining on the north, No. 216 Commercial alley. This house was occupied on the ground floor by P. Lehman, who keeps a steamboat butcher shop, and the upper stories were used as a bottle wrapper and paper-box factory, owned by F. Swope. The fire got into this box factory so quickly that the girls employed there had hardly time to escape, and they ran down the steps into Commercial alley, followed by volumes of smoke, and screaming so loudly that they caused the utmost consternation among the clerks in the neighboring stores, who rushed in platoons to their rescue. The burning was chiefly confined to the Cold Storage Company's house, which was very thoroughly gutted. The house extended from Commercial alley clear through to the levee. On the levee front refrigerator boxes had been built up barring all the windows, and the firemen had to dig through the double walls of boxes filled with sawdust before they could reach the fire. The smoke from the southeast was almost stifling, and the firemen who were sent into the top stories came out with weeping eyes and in a half suffocated condition. Assistant Chiefs John Lindsay and Mike Hester were first on the ground, and soon afterwards Sexton himself arrived and took charge. Capt. Evans and the Salvage Corps men did good work in covering and securing goods. Within an hour the fire was completely under control, and by 10 o'clock the fire was extinguished.

It at one time showed signs of spreading into the establishment of Chouteau & Edwards, No. 212 Commercial, but this move was soon checked.

THE LOSS.

The whole loss by the fire will not be over $5,000. The St. Louis Cold Storage Company's building, which is No. 209 North Levee and 214 North Commercial alley, was pretty severely gutted. On the levee the ground store was divided into two portions, occupied by H. Hartigan as a cigar store, and by Chas. Gallagher, a shoemaker. Both parties lose a couple of hundred dollars' damage done to their stock by water. The remainder of the building was occupied by the Cold Storage Company.

Mr. Geo. W. Woodworth, the superintendent of the company, said that the building was owned by Mrs. Clark, and that Collins & Haynes were her agents. The building is damaged to the extent of $1,000. The Cold Storage Company had an insurance of $3,000 on their establishment, which was placed by the Collins & Pratt and the Carroll & Powell agencies. The only goods in storage at the time of the fire were 600 barrels of pickles, valued at $8,000, the property of Messrs. Zott & Kollmorgen, of the Globe Pickle Works, 124 N. Main street. The pickles were on the Commercial alley floor and were not damaged.

The building adjoining, No. 210 North Levee and 216 North Commercial Alley, belongs to parties in Philadelphia, for whom Marcus A. Wolf is the agent. It is damaged to the extent of $500. The ground floors were occupied by P. Lehman, a butcher, whose stock is only slightly damaged. The three upper stories are used by Mr. Swope as a box factory. Mr. Swope said that his stock and machinery were worth $5,000. The machinery was scarcely injured, and the stock sustained only slight damage. Swope was insured for $4,000, which is at least four times his loss.

An Artist's Litigation.

The case of Carl Gutherz, the well known St. Louis artist, against the mystic Memphi, the Mardi Gras association of Memphis, was called yesterday in court. Mr. Gutherz brings suit for $900 for work ordered by the Memphi in 1878, but countermanded on account of the yellow fever epidemic. The following year he was again ordered to go ahead and complete the work, which order was again countermanded. A third order was given to finish the work when the fever subsided. Shortly afterward the Memphi chose a new subject, and entered into another contract with Gutherz for a pageant, the subject to be "Jason in Search of the Golden Fleece." No specific price was named, but the artist understood he was to be paid the same as before. He claims that the work was worth full $600 and that he had to give up work to do this. He completed the pageant, which was approved and accepted, and finally exhibited about March, 1881. He says he has only been paid $300 and he sues for $1,200 less this amount, with interest.

The "Biger Man" than Grant.

That "biger man" than Grant, L. H. Fitzhugh, former doorkeeper of the U. S. House of Representatives, in company with the president and other officers of the Chicago, Texas and Mexican Central, passed through our city yesterday from Texas on their way to Chicago. We learn that through the management of Mr. Paxton, connected with the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad of this city, and Mr. Fitzhugh, a charter has been obtained from the Choctaw Council for a road through this nation to the mouth of Boggy, on the Red River, where the new Chicago, Texas and Mexican Central and the St. Louis and San Francisco connect, giving a grand trunk from St. Louis to the Pacific Coast. The new road, C., T. and M. Central, now, we are told, being built, by running from Red River in connection with the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad northeast to St. Louis and Chicago, and southwest from Red River to Eagle Pass, on the Rio Grande, and then to the Pacific, will shorten the distance from St. Louis to the Pacific over 300 miles. The officers of the new road are Daniel H. Hall, of Chicago, president; Chas. Howard, of Boston, first vice-president and general manager; T. T. McAuly, second vice-president; D. K. Cliff, general solicitor; L. H. Fitzhugh, member of the Board of Directors and active spirit in the enterprise.

ROBBED AT HIGH NOON.

The Biddle Market Savings Bank Relieved of $5,500.

How the Job Was Done—The Cashier's Story.

The robbery of the Biddle Market Savings Bank, on Thirteenth and Biddle, at high noon yesterday, was one of the neatest, as well as one of the most successful feats in the criminal calender. A well dressed gentleman dropped into the bank late Saturday afternoon, and after cultivating the acquaintance of Frank Peitzmeier, the teller, poured into his ears a long story about his being a young man seeking an investment. After some talk, in which he made a very good impression on the cashier, he bought one Government bond and left. About noon Monday the well-dressed stranger called again, accompanied by a friend in a buggy. Going into the bank, he reminded the teller of his call on Saturday, and began talking again about "those bonds." He said the gentleman out in the buggy was thinking of buying some, too, but his horse was restive, and the teller had better go out to him. In the mean time another party, evidently in league with the robbers, came in and tried to deposit some money with Cashier Koch, and the count of the two gentlemen varied as to the amount of cash, and they had a very acrimonious discussion about it, which fully occupied the cashier's attention and prevented him from seeing what might be going on at the teller's window. Seizing the opportunity the bond-buying young man walked in and emptied the cash drawer of $7,000, which he jammed into his overcoat pocket. Then he went out to Teller Peitzmeier, who was still trying to sell some bonds to the man in the buggy, whom he told that he would see later, jumped into the buggy and cut the horse with the whip, disappearing immediately. The man whose money would not count up right also at once disappeared. The robbery was discovered a few moments later when the teller wished to pay a check; but it was too late, the thieves had scattered with their booty, and there was nothing left but to go for sympathy to the police. Detectives were placed at the Union Depot and a close description of the men was sent to all the police stations, but twenty-four hours have elapsed since the robbery with no result.

CASHIER KOCH'S STORY.

The situation of the Biddle Street Bank is particularly open to just such a robbery as was effected yesterday. The bank counter is something in the shape of an ell, a large open space being afforded into its interior through the directors' room. In this interior the safe stands always open, and with a plethoric look, inviting burglary. A POST-DISPATCH reporter called at the bank this morning and had a long talk with Cashier Koch upon the theft.

"The four men," he said, "were all standing just where you are, in front of the counter, when the teller was called out into the street. That was the moment seized to get at the safe. The men in front kept me busily talking to them, and I suppose the man who went behind had rubbers on, for he certainly made no noise at all. There was $37,000 in the part of the safe opened besides what was taken, and more than $10,000 in cash right here at my left hand. I know that the men were all heavily armed, and I suppose they intended to use violence if they had not succeeded without it. They were four to two, and double they would have succeeded, as we expected nothing of the kind."

"Have you footed up the exact loss yet?"

"Yes. We have discovered another $500 package of bills, which reduces the whole loss to $5,500—$5,000 in fives and tens and $500 in ones and twos."

"Have you any hope of recapturing the money?"

"We may get the thieves; the police claim to be on the trail, but I don't suppose we will ever get the money."

"Do they know who the thieves are?"

"They are supposed to be the same lot who robbed President Burr, of the St. Louis National Bank, and who attempted to pass the raised draft yesterday on the German American Bank."

S. W. MO. CONFERENCE.

The St. Louis Christian Advocate.

At the recent session of the Southwest Missouri Conference of the Methodist Church South Mr. Logan D. Dameron made a statement of his connection with the St. Louis Christian Advocate, showing that this paper had been steadily increasing in circulation during all the time that he had been the manager; that, beginning with less than 5,900 subscribers, it had now reached a circulation of over 17,000, was rapidly increasing and now paying handsome profits; and that, having accomplished his purpose of placing the paper on a paying basis, he was now willing to turn it over to the church, should she desire to take it, but would not sell it to any individual. It, however, the church did not desire to purchase it he wished to be relieved from all responsibility for other than its business management, and therefore solicited the raising of a joint committee of the patronizing conferences to take general supervision of the Advocate. The matter was placed in the hands of a committee, who presented the following report, which was adopted by the conference:

REPORT OF COMMITTEE OF BOOKS AND PERIODICALS.

We have listened with pleasure to the liberal propositions of Logan D. Dameron concerning the St. Louis Advocate, offering to place it under conduct of a committee selected from the patronizing conferences, and then to dispose of his whole interest in the paper if the church wishes to buy. We have no wish to purchase, and think it only meet and right that one by whose management so large a success has been achieved should enjoy the fruits of it. However, in the hope of subjecting the paper in all its departments to control that will be perfectly satisfactory to all, we cheerfully accede to the request of Mr. Dameron that a committee, composed of two from each of the conferences—the Illinois, St. Louis, Missouri—and one from the Western, be appointed to serve until the meeting of those conferences respectively, and that two others be selected at once from this conference, viz., T. M. Cobb and William M. Prottsman.

2. It is needless to say, in this connection, that the St. Louis Advocate gives very general satisfaction, and that we will cheerfully co-operate with the manager to increase its circulation.

3. We can not close without referring to the first volume of the History of Methodism in Missouri, by Dr. McAnally. It is a goodly volume, full of interest, and sold at the very reasonable price of two dollars. Our thanks are due both to the author and the publisher for the labor bestowed; and it is our hope and prayer that the author may be spared to give us the second volume of this History before he departs to join the illustrious band whose names are on his pages but whose spirits are on high.

SALOONS AND PARKS.

The Court of Appeals' Decision in the Abeln License Case.

Other Decisions—A Sister's Suit Against a Hotel-Keeper—Court News.

The Court of Appeals to-day dismissed the petition of Bernardine Abeln, the Park avenue saloon-keeper who sought to compel Collector Hudson to reissue a dramshop license. The petitioner claimed a reissue of the license on the ground that the power possessed by the city by virtue of its charter has been repealed by implication by the Legislature as to those persons who at the time of the passage of the act of 1864, prohibiting dramshops within 800 feet of the Lafayette Park, were keeping dramshops within that limit. The Appellate Court sees no force in such a claim. The city possessed and possesses a general power to suppress dramshops throughout its limits. Not with-standing this power, the legislature saw fit to deal directly with the subject and exercise its power to prohibit new dramshops from being established within the limit. The fact that it saw fit to except from this exercise of its power existing dramshops cannot be construed as curtailing the general power of the city on the subject. It was competent for the city the day after the passage of the act of 1851 to pass an ordinance revoking the dramshop licenses within 800 feet of Lafayette Park and it would have been operative upon the expiration of the licenses then existing. The Legislature simply said: "We will not directly prohibit those saloon-keepers who are there from continuing to carry on their business," but it did not say to the city, "You shall not prohibit them from doing it." The city's position is sustained, the license refused and the saloon-keeper's petition dismissed.

APPELLATE DECISIONS.

The following weekly batch of decisions issued this morning from the appellate bench at the hands of Judges Bakewell and Thompson. Judge Lewis is still indisposed and unable to occupy the bench:

Kemper vs. King; judgment reversed and cause remanded.

Mittelburg vs. Hardison; judgment affirmed.

Boyer vs. Booger, judgment affirmed.

Union Savings Association vs. Seligman; judgment affirmed.

Muench, assignee, vs. Valley National Bank; judgment affirmed.

Loeffel vs. Hoss; judgment affirmed.

State ex rel. Costilo vs. Edwards, judge; demurrer overruled; writ denied.

State ex rel Abeln vs. Hudson, Collector; demurrer overruled, petition dismissed.

A SISTER'S SUIT.

The suit of Emma E. Hurst against James H. Hurst, proprietor of the European Hotel on Fourth street, is set for to-day on the trial docket of Judge Boyle's court. This case affords the remarkable spectacle of a sister suing a brother for services. Miss Hurst, a pronounced blonde, alleges that she entered the service of her brother at the hotel at his special instance and request January 8, 1877. Her duties consisted of sewing and making napkins, sheets, pillow-slips, bedspreads, table clothes, towels, aprons, chair-covers and making and repairing the clothes of the Hurst family. Miss Hurst states that she faithfully performed her services up to January 15th of this year; that they were reasonably worth $1,200, for which she prays judgment. In this family fight it will be remembered that Mr. Hurst was charged with violent and abusive treatment of his sister. He likewise figured as defendant in the divorce court and the whole evidence developed much trouble in the Hurst family.

A COSTLY THROW.

In Judge Lindley's court to day the damage suit of Antonio Paretti, the Italian saloon-keeper, against Bryan, Brown & Co., the boot and shoe manufacturers of Walnut street, is on trial before a jury. It seems that on the 9th of June, 1880, Paretti was standing on the sidewalk of Walnut street under the windows of the shoe factory, when a large iron bound shoe last came through an open window of the fourth story, striking Paretti on the head, and inflicting such injuries that he was unable to attend to business for six weeks. The saloon keeper claims $2,500 damages. The accident occurred through the careless handling of the last by one of the workmen, who was throwing it from one bench to another for the use of another workman.

"I HAVE always been afraid to come in here, because I thought that your establishment was so grand that the prices must be high, but I see, now, on looking through, how mistaken I have been, and that you are actually selling goods much lower than I have been paying elsewhere." This remark, made to us by a lady, is what we know that our citizens are slowly but surely learning, that our immense business and great facilities enable us to buy and sell at lower figures than can be obtained elsewhere. MERMOD, JACCARD & CO., Fourth and Locust.

EAST ST. LOUIS.

Two Prisoners Escape from the Police Station—One of Them Recaptured—Notes.

At about half past 7 o'clock this morning Turnkey Hickey of the Police Station served a light breakfast to the prisoners and began stirring up the fire, leaving the cell doors unlocked. Patrick Spellman and John Davis occupied adjoining cells, and while Mr. Hickey was engaged with the fire Spellmann cautiously opened his cell door and ran through the back door, which stood open. John Davis immediately followed his example, but in doing so attracted the attention of Mr. Hickey, who started in pursuit. A lively chase ensued, the prisoners separating, Spellman running towards Missouri avenue and Davis running towards Broadway. Hickey followed Davis, and succeeded in capturing him after a lively chase. Spellman made good his escape and crossed the bridge for St. Louis. When the prisoners broke from the station, Officer Hickey was the only officer in the neighborhood, and, being an old man, was very fortunate in capturing either of the prisoners. Spellman was arraigned before 'Squire Bunyan yesterday evening for stealing a keg of butter and was bound over in the sum of $100 to appear before the grand jury. Davis was confined for disturbing the peace a short time ago and would have been released in a few days.

Coroner Bader held an inquest this morning on the body of the six-year old son of Charles Laundry, of St. Louis avenue, who broke his neck while stepping over a gutter yesterday evening. A verdict of accidental death was rendered.

T. J. Canty, late candidate for Constable, attributes his defeat to the interest which he took in Frank Poignee's election, one of the Democratic candidates for County Commissioner.

"WE have just returned from the East, and nowhere did we find so beautiful a collection of artistic and lovely things as you have here." This is the manner in which the returning residents of St. Louis speak in the new art rooms of Mermod, Jaccard & Co., Fourth and Locust.

MAJ. HENRY SENTER.

An Old Citizen of St. Louis Dies in Detroit, Michigan.

The many friends of Maj. Henry Senter will hear with regret that he died on the morning of the 13th inst. at the home of his sister, Mrs. Mandlebaum, at Detroit, Michigan.

Maj. Senter was born in Vermont, where his mother and brother still live. He was an old resident of the city, having come here as early as 1840. At one time he was a member of the firm of Senter, Collier & Rankin, and later was manager of the saddlery house of J. B. Sickles. He was also a large stockholder in the Iron Ridge Mining Company. Ever since the organization of the National Guards he has taken great interest in the regiment, and was president of the civil organization for several years.

During the war he was very active in organizing the State militia and other services of that nature. He was well known among prominent citizens as a public-spirited and generous man. He has been ailing for nearly one year, and a short time ago he left this city for Detroit, in hopes that a change would better his condition. Maj. Senter was 58 years at the time of his death. He had never married and he leaves no relatives at all in this city, most of them being in Detroit.

His funeral took place at Detroit to-day.

A DETECTIVE'S DEATH.

Tim. Rahill Succumbs to Quick Consumption Contracted in Colorado.

Police Officer Tim Rahill died at 3:15 this morning at his residence, No. 408 South Fifteenth street. He had been sick for more than a year with consumption. Early last spring he visited Colorado, in search of health, but returned in August not much improved, and has since been confined to his bed. No detective in St. Louis was better known than Tim Rahill. He had been a member of the police force nearly ten years, beginning his service as a patrolman in the Third District. Afterwards he was put upon the detective force, where he served with great credit for several years. About two years ago he was reduced to the ranks, and he did his last duty as a patrolman in the Fifth District. Jim was a great favorite with his brother officers, who sincerely mourn his loss. At the time of his death he was about 35 years of age. He leaves a wife and two children. The funeral services will take place at his late residence at 2 p. m. on Thursday. Deceased was a cousin of Bishop Ryan.

"WHY is it that you sell these exquisite Bisque figures at such low prices? In Boston, New York and Philadelphia they bring much higher prices," was the remark made to us by a gentleman from New York. We answered, because many of our people do not yet appreciate the difference between artistically decorated French Bisque and the common, dauby German Bisque figures which have been sold in this market; so we offer them at very low prices to induce our people to try the higher grades of artistic wares. Mermod, Jaccard & Co., Fourth and Locust.

Hotel Personals.

Judge J. H. Morse, of Missouri, is stopping at Barnum's.

Mrs. Hines and family, of Kirkwood, Mo., have rooms at Barnum's.

R. A. King, of Jerseyville, Ill., Lewis E. Kline, of Kirkwood, Mo., and D. O. Wiley, of Detroit, Mich., are at Barnum's.

MANY of the beautiful pieces in our new art rooms, which we should very much have preferred to have seen decorating the homes of our citizens, have been purchased by visitors to the city from Chicago and Cincinnati, who have all borne testimony to the fact that there is nothing in those cities to compare in elegance and beautiful goods with our new art rooms on Fourth and Locust streets. May we not expect a hearty support in our efforts to introduce a high class grade of artistic objects in St. Louis? You are cordially invited to inspect our beautiful collection.

Attacked By a Bull Dog.

Last night Officer Jim Dunn was attracted to a house near Fourteenth and Spruce streets by cries of "murder" and "watch." When he reached the place, a young fellow named O'Rourke, was pounding his stepfather. He arrested the young fellow and was carrying him out in spite of the efforts of the family when a large bull dog was set on him. The dog bit the officer's heavy oak club, leaving the print of his teeth in the hard wood. He relaxed his hold on this for the officer's knee, and made a lacerated wound, which was promptly cauterized. O'Rourke was taken to the Four Courts and arraigned in the Police Court this morning, but secured a continuance.
